3 BOYS INDICTED IN COMEAU SLAYING

Missing Walpole Baby Dead, Chief Says

PLANS ARREST OF PERSON SUBJECT TO FITS OF WILD RAGE

Walpole, April 22.—The baffling search for little Helen Bakish, two-year-old, who has been missing from the lonely Bakish farm for six days, took a surprising turn today when Chief of Police Thompson declared he believed the baby to have disappeared long before last Friday.

Convinced, he said, that the baby has been murdered and its body buried somewhere on the farm or in the woods, the police chief will take one individual into custody tomorrow if the girl or the body is not found before then.

Chief Thompson said he will hold this person under observation for ten days. He believes that in that time the mystery surrounding Helen's disappearance will have been cleared up.

The person to be taken into custody, Chief Thompson declared, is subject to fits of violent rage.

It was also announced by the police today that the police dogs will be utilized again next Sunday if the search has been unsuccessful up to that time. On their first run the dogs led the hunters again and again to a swamp, but a thorough search failed to find any trace of the missing baby.

REED HURLS 'FOOLS!' AT DRY QUIZ SCOFFERS

Washington, April 22 (A.P.).—To the accompaniment of a machine-gun fusillade of cross-questioning, the case of the drys drew to, its close today before the Senate Prohibition Committee.

One more Senator Reed of Missouri, cross-examiner-in-chief of dry witnesses, piled the star role in as colorful a session as the committee has experienced since it began its hearings three weeks ago.

Objecting at first to the division of time as between wets and drys, then rebuking as "fanatics and fools" those spectators who laughed when he declared he was on neither side of the fence regarding liquor, the Missourian wound up a perfect morning by putting dry witnesses through so scathing a cross-examination that Senator Harreld, Republican, Oklahoma, accused his colleague of bully-ragging."

It was while the stand was occupied by E. C. Dinwiddie, widely known as a temperance lecturer and Washington representative of several prohibition organizations, that Senator Reed gave free rein to his talents as a cross-examiner.

CALL SWETS "WELCHERS."

A little later he gave another and almost as good a demonstration when the witness' stand was occupied by J. Pat Murphy, a former barkeeper, called to testify for the drys.

Dinwiddie, in addition to declaring against any modification of the Volstead act and pronouncing prohibition a success when properly enforced, asserted that the wets had

WIFE DIVORCES 'NO, NO NANETTE' ACTOR

Bridgeport, Ct., April 22 (I.N.S.).—Ethel Corad Crumit of Sound Beach was today granted a divorce from Frank Crumit, an actor, now playing with Julia Sanderson in "No, No, Nanette." Desertion was given as the grounds of the divorce. Mrs. Crumit was awarded alimony of $150 a week as long as she remains single, under an agreement between the couple. The divorce was uncontested and Judge Alfred C. Baldwin issued the decree.

The Crumits were married in Brooklyn March 8, 1916, and the desertion is alleged to have dated from January 3, 1923, when Crumit left his wife in Sound Beach. "He simply ceased to love me," Mrs. Crumit told the judge.

UPHOLD OUSTER OF SHERIFF

Augusta, Me., April 22.—The Supreme Judicial Court, in an opinion today, upheld Governor Ralph O. Brewster in his removal of Sheriff Henry F. Cummings of Kennebec County for unfaithfulness and inefficiency in office.

The opinion, which was read at a meeting of the Governor and the Executive Council at the State House, was concurred in by five of the Supreme Court justices. Two justices delivered a dissenting opinion.

Sheriff Cummings, whose removal came after a sensational hearing conducted by Governor Brewster and the Council, will now seek vindication at the primaries in June when he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination as sheriff of the county.

YOUTHS SOUGHT IN COP'S DEATH ARE HEADING FOR CALIFORNIA, PAL SAYS

Indictments charging first degree murder in the slaying of Patrolman Comeau were returned by the Suffolk County Grand Jury today against Stanley B. Toothaker, Albert Deshon and Samuel Samburky, all of Roxbury.

The indictments were returned to Judge Elias Bishop in Superior Court, the Grand Jury having been called in special session Tuesday by District Attorney O'Brien following the arrest and confession of young Toothaker.

Among the witnesses who were heard by the tribunal were Captain Ainley C. Armstrong of the Bureau of Criminal Identification, Medical Examiner Timothy J. Leary, Captain Matthew C. Dailey of the Fields Corner station and Special Officer Cornelius Leary.

At about the same time Toothaker, who has been held at Fields Corner station as a suspicious person, since being turned over to the local authorities after his arrest for house-breaking in Lynn, was arraigned in Dorchester District Court.

The boy was charged with first degree murder in connection with the killing of Officer Comeau, a John Doe warrant having been obtained some time ago and his name inserted later.

Through his counsel, Attorney Bernard J. Killian, the defendant pleaded not guilty, waived examination

GILBODY ASKS AID FOR HEROES' FAMILIES

By GEORGE F. GILBODY,
Member Boston City Council.

The Comeau case is a notable example of the need of legislation such as that provided by the Casey-Thomas-Boston Evening American hero pension bill.

Everything possible should be done for the speedy adoption of such a measure. It is humane. It is urgent. It is a public necessity.

The relief furnished to the dependents of policemen and firemen, killed in the line of duty, under the present laws, is far from adequate. I say this not theoretically but from experience.

In an official capacity I have been brought into contact with families of policemen and firemen suddenly killed in the performance of their duties.

When I indorse the measure fostered by the Boston Evening American I am actuated by real facts and conditions.

In the case of Patrolman Frank Comeau of Fields Corner station, shot down at night by thugs, the

Come, Bring Your Money
The Imperial Valley
A Better Sahara
The Enchanted Mesa

(Copyright, 1926, by the Star Company.)

YUMA, Ariz., April 21.—This is written at the end of a three hundred-mile trip through Southern California from Los Angeles in an automobile with the top down. In all countries you should see the sky as well as the earth. One is as magnificent as the other.

THE ROAD LEADS through San Bernardino to Brawley, on through the marvelous Imperial Valley to the little Sahara, at California's southern end, where sand hills are piled high as mountains, and the Colorado River rushes past the boundaries of where Mexico, California and Arizona meet.

TO SEE the African Sahara with improvements, while seeing America first, make this trip. At the end of a 300-mile run you bump for miles over a rough plank road laid across the shifting mountains of sand. Eight feet wide is the road. And if in the moonlight you drive off there you stay until help comes. They are building a perfect stone road across the sands now, so hurry. No time or space to describe anything in detail. Each of the 300 miles should have at least one column all to itself. The distant mountains are covered with snow, gigantic trucks with heavy trailers thundering along carrying each twenty tons of alfalfa to the Los Angeles market. Over hundreds of miles of absolutely perfect concrete roads, including a wonderful long stretch beside the Salton Sea.

It is a country in which fertile valleys have been made from dead desert. Hundreds of thousands of desert acres have been changed by water from the Colorado into the marvelous fertility of the Imperial Valley.

NOT TO KNOW this Pacific coast from end to end is

THREE ROXBURY BOYS ARE INDICTED IN SLAYING OF PATROLMAN

NEW CLEW LEADS TO NEW YORK

tion and was ordered held without bail for the May session of the Grand Jury by Judge Joseph R. Churchill.

Patrolman O'Connell, for the police, asked a continuance until next week, but Judge Churchill replied that since the defendant had waived examination a continuance was unnecessary.

The boy was turned over to Court Officer John Halligan, and, for the first time, was taken to Charles Street Jail where he will remain until called into Superior Court to plead on the indictment.

Meantime the search for the other two members of the trio implicated in the slaying, Albert Denhon and Samuel Sambursky, extended to New o'Ork on receipt of information thatthe boys were heading for California.

The information was obtained from young Toothaker and an unnamed boy, and as a result Superintendent Michael H. Crowley wired Chief Inspector William J. Leahy of New York, asking him to broadcast the descriptions of the missing pair.

NEW YORK POLICE BUSY.

Word was later received that this had been done, and that the New York authorities were keeping a close watch on the waterfront, as was suggested by the two informants of the police.

The Toothaker boy was accompanied to court by his mother, Mrs. Jeanette Toothaker, who had been with him at the police station since an early hour. Capt. Dailey had the prisoner brought to the guard room, where his mother seized his hands, and sobbed: "My boy, my boy."

Stanley was glad to see his mother, but did not break down, maintaining the composure which has amazed the police ever since his capture. Mrs. Toothaker stated afterward that they talked mostly about the relief he felt after having unburdened himself of the confession.

The mother wept almost constantly, but her son seemed to feel that the worst was over.

WOMEN IN COURT.

In court he was equally calm, and the crowds that thronged the room, the majority women, commented audibly on his composure and boyish appearance.

Before being taken into court Toothaker was visited by Chief Arey and Sergeant O'Brien of the Belmont police department, who shown he admitted he and the other members of the new famous trio broke into a house at No. 13 Oak street, Belmont, the night before the shooting of Patrolman Connell.

A couch cover and several records, part of the loot obtained in this house, were found in the boy's canoe at Dedham. They have obtained $20 in cash there and helped themselves to food, the police say.

The proceedings in Dorchester court were started before it was learned that the Grand Jury had reported, and were taken as a precaution. It was learned that the gun, found in the Stoneham cache of the gang, to which Toothaker led police, were produced before the Grand Jury as additional evidence.

Toothaker and his unnamed chum are said to have told the police that members of the trio implicated in the killing of Officer Comeau had decided if any were caught that the others would head for San Diego, Cal., by boat from New York.

The unnamed boy is said to have been friendly with the trio, and to have discussed their plans with them. The police say he vouchsafed the information during a talk with them, and it was later corroborated by Toothaker.

The latter was visited by his counsel, Attorney William Killian, early today at the Fields Corner station, and appeared to be in good spirits. His first remark, according to Attorney Killian, was a question as to his mother's health.

ASKS ABOUT MOTHER.

"How is my mother," he asked. "Where is she? Is she suffering? Please look after her. See that she gets what she needs."

The lawyer remained with the boy for twenty minutes, but said he did not discuss the case with him, as he is not thoroughly familiar with it yet. He refused to talk to newspaper men regarding the alleged confession, stating he had not seen it this far.

While a heavy police guard watched a house on Talbot avenue, Dorchester, in the hope of capturing the fugitive Roxbury youths, plans were made to arraign Toothaker on a charge of murder.

The forty-eight hours under which the authorities are permitted to hold Toothaker as a suspicious person expire today and unless the Grand Jury now in session hands down an indictment, he will be arraigned in Dorchester Court for first degree murder.

The police have had the youth's name inserted in a John Doe warrant obtained some time ago, and this will be served on him, it is understood.

The guard on the Talbot avenue house was placed after receipt at the Fields Corner station of an anonymous tip that two boys resembling Denhon and Sambursky had been spending the night there.

LEE SUSPECTS CLEARED.

The police informant said the boys entered every evening and left the house before daybreak. Latest reports were that the boys had not appeared at the house while the guard was on duty.

The police seized on this tip after the discovery that the two young men held in Lee were not Sambursky and Denhon, Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley, with Captain Matthew J. Dailey of Station 11 and several officers, went over the road in automobiles, but after looking over the boys admitted they were not the Roxbury youths.

The police were inclined to believe their quarry had left town after a jewel cache to which young Toothaker led them in an unused section of the Dorchester tunnel, was found to be empty.

According to Toothaker, jewels valued at $5,000 and a gun had been hidden in the Dorchester tunnel and he offered to lead the police to the spot. He already had taken them to Stoneham, near Spot Pond, where he pointed out a heap of rocks under which a gun, wrapped in paper and bound with heavy wire, was found.

Confident that he was telling the truth the police took him to the tunnel and he was led directly to a spot near the end and close to the wall, digging away the earth.

Finding nothing he scraped around in the vicinity, wearing a puzzled look on his face. Finally he went over to the rails and after getting down on his hands and knees announced that everything had disappeared.

ANOTHER BOY HELD.

With strong lights the police aided in the search, going over every bit of that part of the tunnel, but finally gave up the hunt.

No question has been raised yet as to the boy's veracity. The police point out that all other statements he has made have proved correct and hold to the theory that the other youths, following Toothaker's arrest, slipped into the tunnel, secured the proceeds of their thefts and, after pawning them, got out of the city.

Another 17-year-old boy was taken into custody by the police, but they refused to discuss his connection with the crime. He is Robert Mulkerin of No. 17 Palmer street, Roxbury. At the police station he was booked as a suspicious person. Although his mother hurried to the station to offer an alibi to show that he was home on the night of the crime, she was not permitted to see him.

Aids Comeaus

Councillor George F. Gibody of Ward 11, who has introduced an order in the City Council providing for the payment of $2,500 to the widow of Frank J. Comeau, Dorchester patrolman slain in the performance of his duties.

MOTHER GETS JOB; OTHERS ADOPT BABE

Baby Shirley, a blonde, blue-eyed bit of four-month-old feminity who wanted a home a few weeks ago, has one now—and she is happy, her step-mother is happy and her excited parents by adoption are happy.

And it all came about through the Boston Evening American's interest in the matter, according to Dr. Elias Taylor Ransom, in whose hospital at No. 231 Bay State road, Baby Shirley was born to a young mother who could not care for it and a father who would not acknowledge her.

In a letter today, telling that Baby Shirley was in a happy home, Dr. Ransom stated that stories on Baby Shirley war published in the Boston Evening American and another Boston evening newspaper, but that only two replies were received from readers of the latter, while thirty-five came from readers of the Boston Evening American.

Dr. Ransom, who has ushered 3,500 babies into the world and who has found homes for many of them, wrot in her letter:

"Thank you for the grateful, yet sad little mother for whom I secured a position at $23 a week shortly after the legal adoption of her child; also for the very happy new parents whose home has been transformed into a palace of sunshine and whose activities are all being centered around the new baby—and lastly for myself, for your extreme courtesy."

PENSION BILL

need of such assistance as would be afforded under the Casey-Thomas-Boston Evening American hero pension bill is strikingly apparent.

Under an order which I introduced in the City Council, Mrs. Comeau is now receiving $12.25 a week under a city pension fund, which we can all appreciate does not go far these days to keep a house, to pay rent, to buy food and fuel and shoes and clothing for a mother and two little tots.

Realizing the inadequacy of this pension of $50 a month, I am having a second order prepared under the provisions of Chapter 371, Acts of 1924, which provide for the payment of $7,500 to the widow and children of a police officer killed in the performance of his duty.

FULL SALARY.

Payment of the full salary of the deceased after death to dependents would, in my opinion, be a far more equitable and satisfactory method than the present provisions, which involve more or less red tape and delay.

It should be borne in mind by members of the Legislature and the public that the workmen's compensation act does not provide relief for members of the police and fire departments, two of our highest-trained and most hazardous public departments.

I could cite many other instances that have arisen during my years of public service, cases which would stir the sympathies of the most calloused and indifferent.

BABY ADOPTED AND HAS NEW HOME

Baby Shirley, whose girl mother was deserted by child's father, is happy in new home after adoption by couple who read of the case in the Boston Evening American.

STEARNS GUARD ADMITS GUILT IN RUM CASE

A plea of guilty in the Swampscott rum conspiracy trial in Federal court was made today by Joshua B. Acker, formerly night watchman on the estate of Frank W. Stearns, political godfather of President Coolidge, at the Stearns Summer estate on Little Point.

Admission of guilt by Acker, who is the third to plead guilty in the case, came as a complete surprise. He was called to the stand as a government witness, said he wished to change his former plea of not guilty and promptly launched into a story of his connection with the alleged liquor smugglers.

"Easy money" was his reason for participation, Acker said, declaring that he got $100 from Harry Brown, one of the defendants in the case, and $25 from George Macris, another defendant.

Besides being night-watchman on the Stearns estate, which adjoined "White Court," the 1925 Summer White House of President Coolidge, Acker was escort for the maids in the employ of the Stearns family, he said, escorting them to their homes at night when their work was done.

He said he saw lots of liquor in the basement of the Johnson estate, which the alleged conspirators are charged with using as a storehouse, and that at first he thought the packages were life-preservers, until he became better acquainted with events along the shore.

Patrick McDonnell of Boston, a defendant, came and went from the Johnson house several times in October, 1924, the witness testified.

Mrs. Daisy Morgan of Essex street, Beverly, a sister of Mrs. Gertrude Hanna Dodge, a previous witness in the case, told of seeing Harry Brown pay $100 to a Swampscott policeman. Mrs. Dodge, when she was on the stand, told of money paid to ex-Police Chief William L. Quinn of Swampscott, who is one of the defendants.

"I was at Harry Brown's house on August 19, 1924," said Mrs. Morgan. "Brown said: 'Here's the man you have heard so much about; the one they are trying to railroad out of Swampscott.'

"Officer Kehoe then looked up and smiled, and got up to go. Brown said: 'Hold on a minute; don't you want some sugar?' He then got $100 from Mrs. Dodge and gave it to the officer."

RITCHIE OPENS WALSH'S FIGHT

moment that the cohorts of Senator Butler are doing likewise.

Not alone of politics did Governor Ritchie talk, for he spoke ardently of prohibition that has "failed to prohibit or even to promote temperance."

"Modification of prohibition would be in the interest of true temperance," he asserted.

"So long as the eighteenth amendment can't be changed, I believe that the matter should be turned back to each State for its own solution of the problem."

FOR STATE OPTION.

"I believe that each State should be permitted to fix the alcoolic content of its beverages.

"I think a majority of people of this country feel that the sale of wine and beer would help conditions everywhere."

Governor Ritchie explained that he had not made up his mind, for his own satisfaction, as to the method that should be used to dispense the beer and wines.

He was not advocating a return of the saloon, either, he said, but he had read with much interest the editorials of William Randolph Hearst on the saloon subject.

RAY STARK'S FESTIVAL.

Turning to the political situation, the Maryland leader said he was much interested in having the Democrats carry Massachusetts in the senatorial fight.

Former Senator Walsh had been a breakfast-table visitor of the Governor in the Copley-Plaza, and in his comment on the coming fight Governor Ritchie pointed out the great vote-getting power held by the ex-Senator.

"The senatorial elections in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts will be pivotal elections and will materially affect Coolidge's chances in 1928," he declared.

SEE ON PRESIDENCY.

"If Mellon's candidacy, Pepper, loses in Pennsylvania and Coolidge's friend, Butler, loses in Massachusetts—that cooks Coolidge.

"We could not have two more significant elections than those two. In view of the fact that Walsh was defeated by only 16,000 votes and that Coolidge carried Massachusetts by about 50,000, it is very significant that Walsh is a vote-getter.

"I know Mr. Walsh well and like him and would be glad to come back here to speak and aid him win as best I may."

The Maryland Governor shied away from his own declared aspirations for the presidency when he was asked if he would run.

UP FOR GOVERNOR.

"I am running for Governor next Fall, and the future generally takes care of itself," he remarked.

Governor Ritchie, who was received by the Women's Democratic Club, Inc., in the afternoon, will speak tonight before the City Club. The party will attend a banquet of the Massachusetts Democratic Club at the American House.

At this banquet, ex-Senator Walsh is expected to make formal announcement of his candidacy.

Housed in the same hotel with Governor Ritchie today was Sen. Lenroot of Wisconsin, who is in Boston to fire one of the big guns for the Senator's campaign opening tonight at Symphony Hall.

Senator Lenroot was chary of words as he awaited the G. O. P. meeting, but he did say that there are no more Democrats in Wisconsin and also that he does not believe Congress at this session will act to modify prohibition.

'GENTLEMEN'S PACT' IN DODGE PARIS DIVORCE

$1,000,000 BRIDE SECRET ON KING'S RANSOM IN GEMS

MADAME PLAYS THE PART OF SPHINX

But Her Book, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," May Give a Clue

Paris, April 22 (Universal).—"Because gentlemen prefer blondes"—the Ritz luncheon habitues were saying this morning—Mr. and Mrs. Horace Dodge, Jr., of Detroit, have made up their minds to obtain a Paris divorce in "the most gentlemanly way" possible.

It is declared that was the purpose for which Mrs. Dodge arrived here a fortnight ago. She will have established an official residence within the course of the next few days, entitling her to appeal to the jurisdiction of the busiest divorce court in the Old World.

Whether Dodge, himself, will obligingly cross the ocean to accept service has not yet been settled, but should he be prevented, for the time being, it is understood his Paris attorney will likely arrange for service by publication of the summons in the Law Gazette.

The "gentlemen's agreement" by which the couple bound themselves to go through the legal proceedings with as little annoyance for each other as possible, consists chiefly of an understanding to maintain an "entente cordiale" until such time as the Paris judges legally sever the marital knot.

Both parties are bound to secrecy, which is the real reason why Mrs. Dodge declines to confirm or deny the rumor which was the main topic at the Ritz and other fashionable luncheon places today.

As to the grounds on which the action is to be based, Mrs. Dodge is also silent. Instead of replying to a question about it, she smiled and nonchalantly threw onto a nearby table a book which she was reading. It was entitled "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

WON'T TELL WHOM SHE WED OR WHEN

Back From Europe, She Blinds Customs Men With Jewels: Had 4 "Thrilling Days"

New York, April 22 (Universal).—Miss Mabel Boll isn't a bit envious of Peggy Hopkins Joyce. Peggy had to say "yes" and "I do" before the matrimonial altar four times before becoming the fortunate possessor of all the marvelous gifts her adoring husbands have lavished upon her.

Similarly, Miss Boll is left stone cold by the good fortune of the other dear young things who, throughout the ages, in America and elsewhere, have won ropes of pearls, limousines, diamonds and bank accounts through felicitous marital alliances.

SHE BEATS "PEACHES."

For if what Miss Boll lightly and laughingly told the shipnews reporters when she tripped happily down the gang plank of the French Line steamship France was seriously intended, she was wed but four short, thrilling days, and won more than $1,000,000 worth of jewels thereby! In other words, Miss Boll was a $250,000-a-day bride.

Will some one page "Peaches" Heenan, and all the other Cinderella brides of this and other ages?

Miss Boll, who is known in Paris to have more jewels than any other woman in the world—please don't get any misconceptions about this—the cold, unemotional customs men who examined her gems announced officially she had brought at least $1,000,000 worth of precious trinkets with her—was maddeningly non-committal and mysterious when the ship-news reporters tried to induce her to tell the story.

Who was this man who had given her more than a king's ransom in jewels during only four never-to-be forgotten days of wedded bliss?

How did it all come about? Was it a long or a short courtship?

What was his name? Was he an old man, or a young one? When, or where did the marriage take place?

"ASK NO QUESTIONS."

"You must not ask personal questions," playfully chided the imperturbable Miss Boll. "They never asked me personal questions in Paris."

"But, Miss Boll," implored one of the reporters. "Just tell us one thing. Do you actually mean to say you had none of the $1,000,000 worth of jewels before you married, and that you got 'em all in four days before separating from your husband?"

"Yes. $1,000,000 worth and more," said Miss Boll, lightly. "That much I have no objection to telling you."

Meanwhile, it might be well to explain here that Miss Boll is not connected with the theatre or the movies. Miss Boll is the former wife of Hermando Rocha, who, it is said, was the president of one of the South American republics. Miss Boll owns the Chateau De La Boissiere at Ben Lle, near Paris, which has lakes, and swans, and peacocks.

CUSTOMS MEN GASP.

When Miss Boll arrived here she wore one huge diamond ring which must have weighed 40 carats. She had on a necklace of pearls, and she wore other rings besides the 40-carat one which caused the customs men to gasp.

The customs men spent more than an hour on the pier examining the extraordinary collection of gems Miss Boll had brought with her, and then announced:

"There isn't any question about the value of the lot—it's $1,000,000 at the very least."

Thus reassured as to the value of the gems at least the reporters again implored Miss Boll for details but she was adamant.

"It's no one's business who I married, and why we parted after only four days," she said.

BOSTON, THURSDAY, APRIL 22, 1926

GENERAL NEWS SECTION

OSTRICH KILLER FINED $20 FOR TRESPASS

William C. McIntyre of Roxbury, the ostrich killer, was today found not guilty of cruelty to animals, not guilty of breaking and entering, but guilty of trespass by Judge Perrins in West Roxbury court.

He was not guilty of cruelty to animals, said the judge, because he did not attempt to torture or maltreat the 250-pound bird, but fought it for his life, with the odds heavily against him.

Though he climbed a seven-foot fence, while in a drunken daze, and entered the camel house, where the ostrich was confined, to sleep off his intoxication, according to Judge Perrins, McIntyre was found not guilty of breaking and entering because he had no evil intent to commit larceny or other offenses in entering the enclosure in the Franklin Park Zoo.

MAXIMUM PENALTY.

McIntyre was fined $20 for trespass, the maximum permissible by law. "Because he had no right to be there." The enclosure was posted, warning persons not to trespass.

"This shows what can be done when a man is unduly under the influence of liquor, and ought to be a lesson to the defendant," said Judge Perrins.

But McIntyre, before the court session began, had already "sworn off." While waiting in the corridor, he told reporters: "It was a terrible battle. I'm done drinking."

BIRD VALUED AT $500.

The value of the ostrich which McIntyre strangled to death on April 8 when the bird attacked him as he lay down to sleep in the zoo, had no bearing on the case, Judge Perrins said, as far as the criminal courts are concerned.

The ostrich was worth $500, according to Curator Dan Harkins

Judge Perrins had the evidence under consideration for several days. McIntyre admitted drunkenness and the fight, though he did not know what animal it was that he fought and killed until he read the newspapers after his mad flight from the zoo.

HELEN IS WORRIED OVER EXTRA WEIGHT

There's a wrinkle under the white-peaked visor of America's greatest net star. Helen Wills is much concerned as taking on four pounds extra weight, for she is afraid her new Paris gowns won't fit. Any woman will know why she lies awake nights.

PRESIDENT LIKELY TO VISIT CATSKILLS

Washington, April 22.—New York State is likely to have the Summer White House this year, according to an impression in official circles. With 40 estates from which to make his selection, the President is still undecided, but there is evident a leaning that he is leaning toward the lower Catskills.

NEW RAILROAD TRAINS LISTED IN SCHEDULES

Both the Boston & Albany and the New Haven Railroads today announced sweeping changes in their schedules to conform with daylight saving, which goes into effect in Massachusetts next Sunday. Schedules will change almost coincidentally with the adoption of new time, though the railroad clocks will not be set ahead.

Two notable additions to the service of the Boston & Albany Railroad are shown in the Summer timetable which goes into effect at 2:01 next Sunday. Numerous changes in schedules have been made to avoid inconvenience to patrons.

The first important addition to the Boston & Albany service is a train which will run on Sundays from Boston to New York and New York to Boston, via Springfield, leaving each city at 8:35 a. m. Another new feature is the running of a sleeping car between Boston and Springfield on the train leaving Boston at 11 p. m.

On the New Haven road through Shore Line trains to New York and beyond will be moved ahead one hour. The Mayflower, leaving now at 8:30 a. m., will leave at 7:30; the Colonial Express for Washington at 5 a. m.; the Bay State at 9 a. m.; the New Yorker at 10:30 a. m.; the Knickerbocker Limited at 12 noon; the Merchants' Limited at 4 p. m., and all other service similarly will be scheduled one hour earlier, Eastern Standard Time.

The annual meeting will be at Young's Hotel, Boston, May 19.

HUB COPS TOLD P. O. MEN CAN CARRY GUNS

With the police of other large cities, Police Commissioner Wilson instructed the Boston department today that no authorized postal employe should be questioned for carrying firearms.

A mail truck was recently stopped in a large city, when police held the driver for carrying a revolver. As a result the mails were delayed for some time.

Commissioner Wilson stated that a decision of the Supreme Court authorizes the carrying of firearms by the postal clerks.

In addition to the badge which every postal employe wears, clerks on the regular payroll also have cards of identification with photographs attached. This, Wilson pointed out, is sufficient means of identification.

Similar letters have been sent out in New York, Worcester, Springfield, Providence and New Haven.

QUINCY MOTHER CLEARED OF KIDNAPING DAUGHTER

Worcester, April 22.—Mrs. Eva Newell Vincent of Quincy, and her mother, Mrs. Nancy Newell of the same city, in district court today, were found not guilty of kidnaping Mrs. Vincent's fourteen-year-old daughter Dorothy.

The action was based on a decision by Judge Chamberlain in Probate Court yesterday, who found Mrs. Vincent had been awarded custody of the child by the Dedham court.

Her former husband, Charles Vincent, had also been awarded custody by the court of New Haven, Ct., where he lives. He took the girl to his mother's home in Sutton, from which place Mrs. Vincent and Mrs. Newell took Dorothy to Quincy. Vincent obtained warrants for the two women, and petitioned he be given custody of the child in Massachusetts.

BOYS WHO TOOK PERILOUS CRUISE IN LEAKY BOAT WELCOMED BY THE 'GANG'

I'M GLAD TO BE WITH THE "GANG"
THE "GANG'S MASCOT
THE "GANG" WELCOMES "JERRY" HOME.
THEY REACHED THE BARGE JUST BEFORE THEIR SKIFF SANK.

Gerald Driscoll, 11, who was marooned with William Kendall and John Meehan, Dorchester boys, on an old mud scow in the Neponset River for seven hours.

Gerald is the leader of his gang, and it has for its mascot Theresa Gallagher, 11 months old, shown with her brother. She heard the tale of exciting adventure from "Jerry's" own lips and it was some story, we'll tell the world.

There are 25 boys in "Jerry's" gang and each is a real guy. The gang gave their leader the royal welcome due a real hero and mariner who has survived perils of the sea.

It was almost like an adventure on Treasure Island—the one that "Jerry" and his pals had. They were rowing a leaky boat on the river when it began to sink and they just did make it to an old mud scow as their craft went under. There they were marooned for seven hours.

turned out to be "welchers," when there had been every reason to believe that they would be, instead, "good sports."

When he had concluded his statement, Reed asked many questions about the organizations he had represented, and as a part of the pounding cross-examination, developed that Dinwiddie had given up "a good job," as a clerk and stenographer to go into temperance work and now was receiving a salary of $600 a month.

Murphy, who gave his home as Ep. Ky., and said he tended bar in a mining district in pre-prohibition days, testified that "the whiskey traffic had no regard for human life or morals."

DEVER DEFENDS CITY.

"In the old days in preparation for payday in the mines," he said, "the barkeepers had to oil up their guns and cut off the pickhandles in preparation for the trouble to come."

Blind tigers ran in full force during the legally wet days, he said, and many crime was frequent in Kentucky-West Virginia coal fields.

Mayor William Dever of Chicago took the stand and complained of the criticism of the Chicago police force recently voiced by United States Attorney Olson.

"I am not here as a wet or a dry, but to tell the truth about the great city of Chicago," Mayor Dever said.

"Have you read Mr. Olson's testimony?" asked Senator Gillett, Republican, Massachusetts.

"No, sir, I have not. I have read only the newspaper accounts."

GILLETT QUESTIONS.

Chairman Harreld said that Olson had testified that he had got the best of co-operation from the city administration. Then Senator Gillett read Olson's statement that stills operated with the knowledge of the police and it would not be difficult for 5,000 police to "pull them out by the roots."

Dever said this was the second time that an effort had been made by a Senate committee recently to besmirch "that great city of Chicago." He continued that conditions in Chicago previously had been as bad that a representative group of citizens decided to lay politics aside and select high-standing men to run for office.

When was that?" asked Gillett.

"In 1923, when I ran for office," Mayor Dever said. "The integrity of the city was threatened. I did not want the office, but it was put up to me in such a way I had to accept the Democratic nomination. I put men of the opposition political party in high offices.

"Now that's the background, and I ask you gentlemen if you think we would sell out the city to bootleggers and beer runners. We are trying to do our duty."

BLAMES OLSON.

The Mayor said that when he took office he made a survey of the city and found conditions "deplorable."

"There were 15,000 or 20,000 places selling liquor right in the open," he said. "I realized that I would have to have help to cope with such a crushing burden.

"I told Mr. Olson that this situation would have to be cleaned up and asked him to go along with me in the campaign. He did not respond as I thought he should and I said: 'Very well, Mr. Olson, here are the facts, and I am going to take them to Washington and lay them on President Coolidge's desk and ask his aid in having the Federal courts and machinery co-operate with us.'

"That was enough. He responded and became a public-spirited man."

Dr. Dinwiddie said no one would contend that enforcement of the dry law had been perfect.

"But there has been a decided improvement during the past year," he added, "with excellent prospects of still greater effectiveness as the new organization develops."

CLAIMS INSINCERITY.

Opposing all the proposals for wine or beer, he argued that any beverage that would satisfy those with an appetite for intoxicants would be repugnant to the eighteenth amendment.

Prohibition is entitled to a "fair trial," the witness contended, including bringing enforcement and judicial by bringing enforcement and judicial machinery into real force.

He declared the moral sense of the people revolted at any idea of returning to a legalized liquor traffic.

Dr. Dinwiddie said the spectacle of the wets urging a referendum on beer and wine was a peculiar one since before prohibition they had fought "with every weapon at their command" to prevent votes on the question of saloon or no saloon.

"We challenge the wets," said Dinwiddie, "to have this question made a major issue by any large political party."

Reed tried again and again unsuccessfully to get Dinwiddie to say that the legal sale of light wine and beer would be better than a condition where thousands of stills are operating in the homes.

"I think if conditions are as you paint them," Dinwiddie said, "they challenge the best thought and work of the best people. But you are assuming that these conditions you describe must continue; I do not."

"If beer were sold do you think all these stills would disappear?" asked Senator Gillette, Republican, Massachusetts.

"I do not," said the witness.

THOUSANDS ARE 'RAILROADED' INTO ASYLUM

Washington, April 22 (I.N.S.)—A remarkable admission that probably one-half of the several thousand inmates of St. Elizabeth's, the government's big insane hospital here, have been committed to the institution without "competent" court procedure was spread upon the records of Congress today.

It came from Dr. W. A. White, head of the institution, under questioning by members of the District Committee at a hearing into the status of ex-service patients. Dr. White was one of the alienists who testified to the insanity of Nathan Leopold and "Dickie" Loeb, in the Franks murder at Chicago.

An old law, passed in 1875, it was brought out, operates to permit various government departments, the Veterans' Bureau included, to have patients committed to the institution without a court ever having passed on the question of their sanity or insanity. That there have been abuses under the system was generally conceded.

Crandall Mackey, a local attorney, cited one case wherein a young man named Robert Leslie had been committed and classed "a dangerous paranoiac." Mackey succeeded in getting his release, kept him under observation several months, and found him sane. He subsequently went into the World War as an officer, he said.

Prison Teacher Dies

Alexander Bruce, 66 years old, of Glenwood street, Somerville, for many years prison instructor in tailoring at the prison in Charlestown, died early today at the Massachusetts General Hospital after an operation.

ENGLAND IS AFTER SOUTH'S WAR DEBT

London, April 22 (A.P.)—The Association of British Chambers of Commerce, here today, adopted a resolution requesting the American government to assist in obtaining a hearing before the Supreme Court for British subjects having claims against eight of the Southern States for moneys loaned prior to the end of the Civil War.

The resolution states that "Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and North and South Carolina defaulted on their debts for moneys lent for industrial purposes and for national development."

The individuals cannot bring suit in the American courts against the States, it says, and therefore the Federal Government should assist them to get a hearing before the Supreme Court.

The British foreign secretary is requested to ask the American ambassador to call his government's attention to the matter.

Sir James Martin, president of the London Chamber of Commerce, in moving the resolution, said it was roughly estimated that the eight States named owed $75,000,000 to persons in England.

Mussolini Gratified by U. S. Senators' Action

Rome, April 22 (A.P.)—Ratification of the Italian war debt settlement by the United States Senate brings warm expressions of gratification from high governmental officials.

Premier Mussolini said: "I am most happy to hear the news."

Today similar expressions came from Finance Minister Count Volpi, who headed the debt mission to Washington, and Dino Grandi, the Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

Count Volpi asked the Associated Press to send his 'grateful greetings to the American government, who sustained with such firmness and loyalty the agreed settlement."

BOY, 13, WINS 'IRONSIDES' ESSAY MEDAL

Parochial School Contest Brings Out Many Fine Compositions

Thirteen-year-old Thomas J. Connaughton of No. 301 Chestnut avenue, Jamaica Plain, a pupil in the eighth grade of St. Thomas parochial school, is winner of the "Old Ironsides" medal offered by Boston Lodge of Elks for the best essay on "Why will the preservation of the United States Ship Constitution promote patriotism?" Nearly 19,000 pupils in the parochial schools of Boston were eligible for the prize. Connaughton is the youngest of six children.

Those who won honorable mention are as follows:

Mary Hurley, 18, No. 448 Meridian street, East Boston, senior in Fitton High School; Mary O'Connell, 17, No. 313 West Third street, South Boston, senior in Sts. Peter & Paul High School; Mary Colleran, Jr., 16, No. 309 D street, South Boston, senior Sts. Peter & Paul High School; Anna Dempsey, 16, No. 425 West Fourth street, South Boston, senior St. Augustine's High School; Rose Donahue, 13, No. 819 East Sixth street, South Boston, eighth grade, Nazareth school; Francis Sullivan, Sacred Heart School, East Boston, and Lillian Fitzgerald, who did not designate on her essay where she lived or the name of the school she attends.

Conducted by Joseph Shafer, director of publicity of Boston Lodge of Elks, who, together with James H. Flanagan, Esteemed Leading Knight, handed the essay contest, the winner and those who were honorably mentioned visited "Old Ironsides" at Boston Navy Yard. Lieutenant Commander Brandt, U. S. N., of the national "Old Ironsides" committee guided the children about the old frigate, pointing out the various things of interest connected therewith. As most of the children, including the medal winner, had never seen the famous old ship before, but had obtained all their essay information from books, they experienced one of the thrills of their lifetime.

JUDGES' STATEMENT.

Essays considered of sufficient merit were turned over to a committee of three professors of Boston College selected by Rev. James H. Dolan, president. The judges were emphatic in their desire to remain unidentified.

"OLD IRONSIDES" INSPIRED THEIR ESSAYS ON PATRIOTISM IN U. S.

Mary Colleran, Jr., South Boston, was one of the contestants who was given honorable mention.

Rose Donahue, South Boston, who expressed high ideals of patriotism in her excellent paper.

Thomas J. Connaughton, 13, winner of "Old Ironsides" essay contest promoted by the Boston Lodge of Elks.

Anna Dempsey, South Boston, who submitted an essay that was lucid and had much merit.

Mary Hurley, South Boston, whose essay was so logical that it was given honorable mention.

Mary O'Connell, South Boston, who received meritorious mention. Over 19,000 parochial pupils were eligible.

ONE CHANCE IN 110 OF SLAYER GOING TO CHAIR

Chicago, April 22 (A.P.).—The chances of being executed in America for a deliberate murder are only one in 110 in favor of the slayer, figures compiled by Judge Marcus Kavanaugh reveal.

A survey by the judge shows marked contrast in the crime records of America and England, where a murderer has almost no chance of escaping the death penalty. Less than 100 murders were committed in England and Wales in 1921, while there were 10,000 in America.

One of the reasons for the "amazing difference" in the records for America and Europe is the difference in public attitude toward laws, Judge Kavanaugh believes.

FIGHT MAY BALK LETHAL DEATH FOR 3 SLAYERS

Reno, Nev., April 22 (A.P.).—Legal loopholes may prevent a triple lethal gas execution in this State next month. Prison authorities decided to have a sanity hearing into the condition of Guadalope Acosta, slayer of a policeman, at the prison today. A petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the Federal Court will be heard on May 1 in the case of Stanko Jukich, girl slayer.

In case the writ is quashed it is expected Jukich will appeal to the United States Supreme Court. In the third case the prosecuting attorney and the trial judge have recommended clemency for John H. Randolph, matricide.

PROBE MILWAUKEE FIRE BLAST THAT KILLED TWO

Milwaukee, Wis., April 22 (A.P.).—Chief Peter Steinkellner of the Milwaukee fire department today announced an immediate inquiry into the cause of an explosion in a sawdust bin at the Marsh wood products plant in which two firemen were killed and nineteen other persons were burned. Six of the injured were reported near death today. Firemen were inspecting the bin, their work after a small blaze apparently finished. There was a blast and instantly millions of wood particles, each aglow, were showered over the men trapped in the blazing bin.

IT'LL BE COLDER IN BOSTON

The scrambled order of weather served out to Boston and most of New England today is the forerunner of several days of cloudy skies with the temperature a bit lower, the Weather Man announced today.

While cold weather has vanished the heavier ones should be kept on fo rnnother brief period, according to the prognosticator.

Departure of the cold streaks over the land brought a rainfall, intermittent, but none the less damp.

Today's highest thermometer reading for the earlier hours was 54 degrees and the lowest registered since yesterday was 48.

House Taking Day Off to Chatter

Washington, April 22 (A.P.)—Oratory was the only business before the House today.

Because of insistent demands by a number of members for an opportunity to talk, House leaders agreed to dispense with all legislative matters for the day.

ROXBURY MAN BURNED TO DEATH BY SMALL LAMP

Bruce Day, 75, of No. 64 Northfield street, Roxbury, was burned to death in his home when a small kerosene lamp fell from a table and ignited his clothing.

PLASTERERS IN $14 DAY FIGHT

Chicago, April 22 (I.N.S.)—Complete tie-up of building operations was threatened here today following an announcement of the Plasterers' Union that the demand for a $14 day and five-day week would be enforced, starting May 7.

The proposal to enforce the demand was endorsed by 1,500 members of the Plasterers' Union at a turbulent meeting. It passed over the protest of International President Edward McGivern.

Plaster centers from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and St. Louis, who told of the fancy wages plasterers are getting in those cities, are said to have swayed local workers against the advice of their officials.

The present minimum wage is $12 a day for a six-day week. Local builders have banded together to oppose the increase.

Chicago 'Roasts' When Mercury Climbs to 80

Chicago, April 22.—South winds brought a hint of Summer days when the mercury soared to nearly 80 degrees, the warmest day of this year.

Winter had just closed its return engagement in the Great Lakes region and Spring seemed to be making up for lost time when temperatures went to 25 degrees above normal.

Today will find the mercury back to the fifties, the weather bureau said.

Adopt Day Light Time

Biddeford, Me., April 22.—Biddeford and Saco, following in the footsteps of Portland, Lewiston and Auburn, will go on daylight saving time Monday.

LABOR SCORES SNOBBERY OVER BABY PRINCESS

British Unions Deplore "Idiotic Worshipping" of Child Born Amid Every Luxury

London, April 22 (A.P.).—No. 17 Ourton street, Mayfair, today was the center of attraction for baby worshipping women and girls, who crowded to the spot to view the house in which Great Britain's newest Princess was born to the Duke and Duchess of York. At all social gatherings the toast is "The new baby Princess."

The only dissenting note in all the columns of congratulatory tribute is sounded by the Daily Herald, Labor organ.

The paper says that, while sympathizing with the duchess as a woman and expressing kindliest feelings toward the baby, for the public to be interested in the duchess and her infant "just because she is a duchess," is feeble minded.

CULTIVATING "SNOBBERY."

"To gather in the street outside the duke's home, as large numbers of people have done, seems idiotic," it adds. "Oceans of drivel are being poured out over this interesting event. Snobbery and silliness are let loose to nauseate all intelligent minds.

"Why shouldn't every household in the land be equally fortunate?" the paper asks. "Why shouldn't every mother and every baby enjoy the same advantages—not needless luxury, but cleanliness, quiet, good food and hygienic surroundings?

FAIR CHANCE FOR ALL.

"When one thinks of babies born on bare floors and with scarcely enough nourishment to keep them alive—then one is forced to ask: Why, if the community provides some families with everything they can possibly need, doesn't the community see about to provide decent conditions for every mother and child?"

FEMININE LEADERS FETED AT WOMAN'S WORLD FAIR

Chicago, April 22 (A.P.).—Feminine leaders whose fame is nationwide were feted today at a luncheon which featured Famous Women's Day at the Women's World Fair.

Actresses and authoresses were guests with women whose invasion of masculine fields is so definite that they have not yet been accorded an "ess" to distinguish them from male contemporaries.

It was a cosmopolitan gathering. Ethel Barrymore sat at the table beside Mrs. Gertrude Bonnin, descendant of Sitting Bull and president of the National Council of American Indians. Mary Hastings Bradley, who has shot lions in Africa, shared the limelight with Jane Addams, whose exploration has been among the slums of Chicago.

Other guests included Cyrena Van Gordon, opera star; Effie Shannon, actress; Judge Mary Bartelme, Carrie Jacobs Bond; Mrs. Fannie Bloomfield Weixler, pianist; Mary Anderson, head of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor; Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick and Miss Rina West, the first woman president of the national fraternal association.

An autograph album to be presented to Mrs. Calvin Coolidge will have more than 100,000 names by the end of the fair.

IF HE COULD ONLY TELL A LIE!

not to know your own country. Come out here. If you ever go back it will be to gather up your assets and bring them back with you.

SECRETARY WORK will be in this thriving town next Sunday. He, President Coolidge and the whole nation may be proud of the work that the Interior Department has done all through this region. Wonderful irrigation projects are now actually in working order and the department rules enable the little man to buy his twenty or forty perfect acres with water supplied. Perfect title from Uncle Sam for easy payments, and arrangements to reserve the land for the man that wants to live and work on it. No big concern can gobble it up and speculate at the little man's expense.

EVERY MAN will be interested in recent experiments with irrigation in this region. They may double irrigated fruit crops and then benefit the entire world. George M. Hill, as able a fruit grower as the country possesses, says:

"Plants are like men. They need to get really hungry, really thirsty, without ever being under-nourished. Under such conditions they do their best work.

"IT HAS BEEN the custom to irrigate on an ironclad regulation basis, keeping the ground always moist, water always within reach of the tree roots. Now we wait until irrigation is absolutely necessary and let the tree work harder for itself. Those grapefruit trees over there under former conditions would be four weeks behind in irrigation. And they will be all the better for it. We test the soil regularly for moisture. Never let the tree actually suffer. But we hold back the water until the leaves are almost ready to wilt. Then turn in the water and watch the tree thrive and the fruit improve in size and color."

TREES HAVE been treated with irrigation and fertilized like the rich man's child. Always stuffed, always tired of good things. That ought to change with children of the rich. It will change with trees.

EXPERIMENTS will continue, wisely directed, and there is reason to hope that five-year-old grapefruit trees will increase their yield from five to ten boxes per tree. Mr. Hill is too busy to answer any letters. Write to the Agricultural Department at Washington, or to the experiment station of the University of Arizona at Yuma.

COME OUT to this country. Travel up and down in it from the Mexican north border, beyond Seattle, through California, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Washington, Oregon. Every word in that list of States stands for a great empire. The population of this great State of Arizona is only 400,000, and the Mesa, near here, with the valley below, could easily feed twenty millions.

THIS WESTERN PACIFIC coast land is the land of opportunity. There is success, interest in life, happiness for anybody willing to work and bring enough money to start. But you must come provided with enough to start. "Honest hearts and willing hands" will not start a citrus grove, or an alfalfa ranch without capital. GET IT, AND BRING IT HERE.

IMAGINE, YOU that have never seen this enchanted Yuma Mesa. A tableland where orange growers have no smudge pots, because they have never had a frost. Where they never spray or fumigate, because they have no scale or other insect pest to worry them, and where the State government watches every plant, fruit or seed that enters its territory, to keep out danger.

AS A SAMPLE of what desert land can do when water is pumped up from below, consider the little forty-acre ranch that Henry A. Bradley bought from O. T. McCoon. Bradley, the first year, planted forty acres of pecan nuts, with cotton between the rows of young trees. His cotton paid for the land, the pumping plant and the young trees the first year. Last year he took seventy-seven bales of cotton from thirty-seven acres, more than two bales to the acre. And here the boll weevil is unknown. And the State intends that it shall remain unknown.

Save your money. Get a car. Travel. See your own country. Study it. "Prove all things. Hold fast that which is good." Get your own spot and hold on to it.

NO ONE KNOWS what the wealth of this country is to be. Near Los Angeles the Standard Oil drills deeper through an exhausted "oil sand," and from the deepest well known gets a "gusher" spouting six thousand barrels a day. And that's nothing. A thousand such gushers would be insignificant compared with the wealth hidden in this State.

The boulder dam project will lock up in the canyon above the dam enough water to provide twenty-six million acre feet, which means enough water to cover 26,000,000 acres one foot deep.

That will be eighteen times as much water as the Roosevelt dam supplies, and the new, big dam should be named "Calvin Coolidge." His administration will put it through with perfect fairness to Arizona and California, and the people of the coast know it and appreciate it.

FIREBOAT FIGHTS FIRE ON GOVERNOR'S ISLAND

A briskly burning grass fire which consumed the four Summer vacation camps and attracted the attention of persons on all the harbor islands, was extinguished by Fireboat No. 21 from North End Park, after it had burned over the southeastern portion of Governor's Island. The island is at present unoccupied. The fireboat was compelled to wait for a favorable tide before they could throw a stream on the burning area.

UNIFRUITCO TO GIVE CLUB PLAY

The Unifruitco Club, composed of employes of the United Fruit Company, will present "Nothing But the Truth," a comedy, on Friday evening, April 23, at Repertory Theatre Hall, Huntington avenue.

The cast of characters includes Margaret Gardner, Margaret Kennedy, Margery T. Lynch, Alice Robertson, Eleanor Stahr and Anna J. Sullivan; Messrs. A. E. Carpenter, M. O. Carter, F. J. Caffrey, M. S. Gibson and F. F. McManus, Mr. V. deP. Goubeau, Division Purchasing Agent at Long Wharf, has coached the play throughout, and his efforts show excellent result.

One of New England's famous dance orchestras, "Art Rubin's," will play for dancing after the show.

15 REFORMATORY HUNGER STRIKERS SENT TO PRISON

St. Paul, Minn., April 22 (A.P.).—Dissatisfaction with the food at the State Reformatory at St. Cloud among fifteen inmates, who went on a hunger strike, resulted in their transfer to the State Prison at Stillwater, the Pioneer Press states today. J. J. Casey, assistant superintendent of the reformatory, said: "The transfer was made because it was felt that they were agitators, making trouble among the inmates and constituted a bad influence on the younger men," the newspaper declares.

BEACH COMBERS MAKE BIG MONEY AT CAPE MAY

Cape May, N. J., April 22.—Beach combers have been making as much as $10 per day by picking up money and jewelry here, while the new boardwalk has been under construction along the water front. Coins bearing dates as far back as 1776 have been found, and Robert Chambers has reported the finding of a pearl necklace said to be of considerable value.

Y. W. C. A. TAKES UP DIVORCES

Milwaukee, Wis., April 22 (A.P.)—Discussion of the divorce question, protective legislation for women and broadening of religious restrictions for membership are problems of delegates here for the national convention of the Young Women's Christian Association.

Another problem is decision as to whether the Y. W. C. A. shall voice its opinions, as an organization in national issues.

"PEACE AT ANY COST" HIT AS DECADENCE BY ELY

Milwaukee, Wis., April 22 (A.P.)—the effort now under way to pledge youth to resist war at any cost.

"There is an obligation that rests upon all to make return to our country in citizenship," he said. "When we remember that of all peoples in history we are the most fortunate, owning more than half the world's wealth, service under arms in time of national peril seems a small return indeed."

General Ely asserted that if America had been prepared for war in 1916, it could have stopped the World War without entering the conflict.

General Ely attacked "professional pacifists who would corrupt the finer instincts of America's youth."

Charging that many churches have been infected with the "peace at any price" mania, General Ely decried

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

The Edwin Perkins Browns of Newton Give Dinner Dance to Daughter

LITTLE MISS OLIVIA AMES, small daughter of Mrs. "Ollie" Ames, Jr., popular member of the ultra smart set. Little Miss Ames promises to be as popular as her charming mother.

I dip into the social whirl, went a-travelling all over the world. She with her parents, was in Japan when that far Eastern country experienced its severest earthquake, and much alarm was felt for the party's safety.

HER RELATIVE, Mr. George Washington Brown, will be a distinguished figure in the wedding festivities. He it is, as patron of the arts, who is so vitally interested in "Madama Butterfly," which the New England Conservatory presents on Saturday, at the Opera House.

EVER A STAUNCH supporter of things musical in Boston, the Conservatory has always been a pet project of Mr. Brown's, receiving his most ardent and always cheerfully given backing. Likewise the Opera, wherein he always leads the list as a substantial guarantor.

AT BOSTON'S RECENT Grand Opera season Mr. Brown was nightly in attendance, a patriarchal personage always to be found in his chosen orchestra place, in the very first row, and always sharing the pleasure with friends.

SPEAKING OF THE Conservatory, "Madama Butterfly," to be presented on Saturday at the Opera House, is destined for a sure success, artistically as well as financially. An advance sale of tickets, gratifyingly large, foretells a full and enthusiastic house to greet the Conservatory singers.

MISS DOROTHY FRANCIS, to sing the role of "Butterfly" on Saturday, is putting up at the Hotel Touraine during her Boston stay, and is, incidentally, renewing old friendships made when she was a Con ervatory pupil and likewise when she made professional appearances hereabouts.

GIFTED WITH a lovely voice and much personal charm and beauty, her "Butterfly" delights both eye and ear. Altogether it's a first string line of principals that Messrs. Wallace Goodrich and Ralph L. Flanders have enrolled for the performance, including as it does Rulon Robison and David Blair McClosky.

"A GREAT SUCCESS," so everyone declared Richard Platt's last musical of his Winter and Spring series. Heinrich Gebhard at the piano, Harrison Keller playing the violin and Miss Gladys d'Almeida to sing made a trio of artists well nigh untouchable.

NATURALLY, THERE was a crush in Mr. Platt's spacious studio for this musical treat. Just as there was a crush in his second-floor dining room, where tea was served by gracious hostesses—Mrs. Robert DeCourcey Ward at one table and Miss Abby Farwell Brown at the other.

MRS. WARD WORE grace lace and chiffon, topped by a pansy-purple hat, dripping graceful ostrich fronds. Miss Brown (everyone knows her as an author of whom Boston is justly proud) was in black satin with golden brown hat and matching scarf.

AMONG THE REGULARS at the last musicals there were Mrs. John L. Amna in black, with her daughter, Miss Muriel Ames, wearing just red in the new mode; Miss Dai Buell in crimson and black; Miss Pauline Danforth in bois de rose and Mrs. Harrison Keller in wrap of ecru banded in finch.

OFF FOR EUROPE on the same steamship carrying Major Rose Whistler and his bride (Mary Vinton Murray), Miss Louisa James, daughter of the Edward Holton Jamesses of Mount Vernon street, is en route to France and its charming capital city.

PARIS IS REALLY a second home to Miss James, who has lived and studied much abroad, many of her school days having been passed in Paris. She will be away until the Autumn, her stay abroad under the chaperonage of a cousin.

MISS ELLEN COOLIDGE of Fairfield street and Miss Edith L. Dalton of Pinckney street are now sailing eastward for a Summer abroad. Spain is the objective of Mrs. Albert L. Whittier of Commonwealth avenue and Hyde Park, who is aboard La Bourdonnaise.

SHE DEBARKS at Vigo, and with her companion en voyage, Mrs. Morgan Padelford, will jaunt about the highways and byways of that always fascinating country of the mantilla and the toreador. Mrs. Whittier, an inveterate traveler, has seen much of the world and the interesting sights therein.

Betty Alden

PRE-NUPTIAL FESTIVITIES for Miss Florence Brown and Preston T. Stephenson are many and gay, culminating in this evening's dinner-dance given by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Perkins Brown at their Newton residence.

GIVEN IN HONOR of the wedding principals, the occasion also includes the large bridal party and a number of close friends and relatives, to the number altogether of nearly fifty. The Brown home in Washington street is en fete for the affair.

SATURDAY'S WEDDING is a large and important ceremonial, to take place in Grace Church, Newton, at 8 o'clock in the evening, and followed by a reception at the Brown home. After a lengthy wedding journey the young people are to make their year-round home at Little's Point, Swampscott.

MISS BROWN, charming and pretty as a picture, came out two or three seasons ago and, after

LAY MUSSOLINI MASONIC WAR TO POLITICS

Basle, Switzerland, April 22 (A.P.).—One of the acts of Benito Mussolini, Italy's Fascist Premier, which may have been misunderstood abroad is that of suppressing the activity of lodges of Free Masons and of closing up al lbranches in Rome.

The explanation given a special corresponndeg of the Associated Press in Rome was that when Mussolini arrived in power he found a mysterious force working against him in the dark and upon which he could not place his hand.

When seeking to inaugurate administrative reforms and advance State employes on the strict basis of merit, he picked out some man for higher duties, often he found his nomination opposed by a bureaucratic machine which thrived during the old regime.

Mussolini, it was declared, started an investigation. This inquiry convinced him Free Masonry was at the bottom of the difficulty and was exercising secret influence which he considered disastrous to the nation as a whole.

OPPOSE POLITICAL ACTS.

The same applied when it came to promotions in the Army and Navy.

Mussolini is described as not opposed to the benevolent attributes of Free Masonry, such as characterize American lodges, but as unyieldingly hostile to any use of political influence which, as exercised in Italy, is declared to have threatened to foil all his attempts to establish the merit system.

The correspondent obtained still another angle to the situation. Italians and foreigners who long have resided in Italy were of the opinion that the youthful militant Fascisti threatened to cause some disruption to the movement headed by Mussolini.

It was learned that the windows of the Soviet embassy in Rome were broken by a mob after the recent unsuccessful attempt by Miss Violet Gibson to assassinate Mussolini. There was every evidence after the attack that strong anti-foreign sentiment filled the Fascist masses and foreigners were virtually unanimous that had Mussolini been killed there would have been tragic anti-foreign reprisals in Rome.

As it was youthful Black Shirts attacked and smashed with walking sticks the hats of two Americans who were riding in an open carriage and had failed to uncover. Another American was a victim of violence, as was his American-made automobile, bearing a British license. It was parked in a public square and the tires were slashed.

The government, fearful that they might arouse the sensitive Italian people, is said to have refused to allow the publication in the newspapers of speeches made in the United States Senate against the Fascist regime. It was declared that Mussolini is somewhat worried over the hoodlum tendencies of some of the Black Shirts and is determined to end them.

BURNED IN EFFIGY.

According to a dispatch from Brussels, the Italian Ambassador to Belgium has been summoned to Rome by Mussolini because of the burning of a straw-stuffed dummy with a bandaged nose, supposed to represent Mussolini, during an anti-Fascist demonstration at Lo Louviere by 6,000 Socialists.

The Belgian government apologized to the Ambassador and an inquiry into the affair has been started.

LAVA SWEEPS RICH RANCHING COUNTRY

Hilo, T. H., April 22 (A.P.).—Mauna Loa, Long Mountain, sent a devastating flow of lava over the rich ranching country of the Kona district.

The river of lava which flowed thirty miles to the sea had begun to cool when the new flow broke out on the line of the 1916 eruption. The new torrent of fire headed for the ranch of Robert McWayne, dooming it to destruction.

3 ARE SAVED AT LYNN FIRES

Three children were rescued, and forty lodgers driven from their beds in two fires that destroyed a five-story business block and three-story frame building in Lynn early today. The flames mounting into the sky drew crowds of motorists.

Two newspapermen sent to "cover" the fire became heroes when they found three children in a smoke-filled house adjacent to a blazing brick structure at No. 16 Railroad avenue, and carried them to the street.

The fire started in the airshaft of the business block and ran through the building, threatening the two tenement houses, filled with lodgers, nearby. Both houses were filled with smoke before the occupants were awakened and fled to the street in scant attire.

When Edward Yealon and Charles Flynn, reporters, arrived, they dashed into the house at No. 539 Washington street, carrying out Barbara, 5, Wilma, 4, and Marjorie, one and one-half years old, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Smith. The children had lost their way and were in danger of suffocation.

The loss to the business block was estimated at $50,000.

The blaze had been extinguished only a short time when another alarm sent the fire department to a three-story wooden frame building in the rear of No. 86 Allen avenue.

COLLIER, IN MUD, FLOATS AT HIGH TIDE

New Bedford, April 22 (A.P.).—The collier Corsica, bound from this port for Newport News, Va., was floated at high tide early today from a mudbank outside the harbor on which the vessel grounded last night.

The steamer, which was without cargo, was undamaged.

HUB HAS GRASS FIRE OF EACH OF 48 HOURS

A grass fire for each of the past 48 hours sufficed to keep members of the fire department busy in the outlying sections of Boston, while 45 other alarms provided entertainment of most of the remainder of the Hub's bravest. Quick responses and efficient work kept the loss down to $2,060.

BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN

VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

SAMUEL CURTIS, JR., Radio Editor

At 9:00 o'clock tonight WNAC is presenting a concert by the Boston College Glee Club and assisting artists.

NEWS SERVICE HEAD PRAISES WIRELESS

The future communication of newspapers and press associations lies in wireless. This thought was voiced by several speakers before the Pan-American Congress of Journalists, at Washington recently.

Touching upon modern and future methods of gathering and disseminating news between the two American continents, Roy Koenigsberg, president of The International News Service said: "In wireless lies all our hope for that great forward step—a press association or two or three press associations combining together the peoples of the great republics of North and South America into one great union of knowledge."

"Boundaries have their place but in this hemisphere at least they should not be allowed to serve as barriers to information. If we all can do our part toward the creation of economical channels of communication between all the peoples of the North and South—we shall have created a greater preventive of misunderstanding than all the diplomatic conferences that can be assembled.

"We all know that radio communication has gone beyond the field of experiment. We know that radio and the automatic typewriter together can make the transmission of news so cheap that the newspapers of North America, through their press associations, will be able to afford to gather news of South America and the newspapers of South America will be able to afford to gather the news of North America in as great detail as they wish.

"Instead of keeping South America a "million miles away" from Washington, the radio and the automatic typewriter should bring it as close to Washington as Chicago is today."

WORLD'S YOUNGEST

Little Jean Dunham is probably the world's youngest radio announcer. She recently appeared in front of the "mike" during one of the Women's Club programs from Station WNAC and announced several numbers. Baby Jean is 2¼ years old, and is the daughter of Mr. E. Lewis Dunham, one of WNAC's regular announcers.

Radio Queries

Q—V. B. D., Brockton. I just bought a Freshman Masterphase set, and had same shipped through the mail from New York. Upon hooking it up I find that the amplifier tubes all light, but the detector tube will not. I know it must be the fault because I have shifted them around. Can you throw any light on the difficulty?

A—In having your set shipped, it is possible that a flaw on the detector rheostat has jarred off. Take the set out of the cabinet, if you have not already done so, and examine carefully the filament circuit to the detector socket.

Well What D'Ye Know About That?

London.—King George occasionally makes himself a pot of tea. Unable to sleep when he learned that he was a grandfather again, he had some of his favorite beverage, watched the sun rise, then went horseback riding.

New York.—Eugene M. O'Neill, a two-fisted man of San Francisco, mistaken for a dramatist on board ship when returning from abroad, wants the world to know that he never wrote anything more than a bill for his canned goods. "Who in this guy O'Neill who writes plays?" he asked.

Philadelphia.—Frank J. Braddock, twenty-five, who earned $51 a week as a clerk, paid $7,500 for home furnishings for his bride. He even had electric refrigeration. Now he has pleaded guilty to stealing from his employers, and the judge is investigating. "It was a plain case of trying to keep up with the Joneses," his counsel argued.

New York.—Frank A. Vachio, son of an Italian immigrant and a page for the New York Stock Exchange at fourteen, is shortly to become a member at twenty-four. His employers have bought him a seat for $135,000.

Vienna.—The price of beer has gone up and consumers are threatening to strike. At monster mass meetings they have vowed not to drink any of the stuff—not a bit of it.

CIVIL RIGHTS FOR DEBS

Washington, April 22 (Universal)—Restoration to Eugene V. Debs, Socialist leader, of all rights of a citizen, including the right to hold office, was asked in a bill filed in the House by Rep. Victor Berger, Socialist, of Wisconsin.

"Debs has served a sentence because he was opposed to our entrance into the World War," said Berger. "In the British parliament there are twenty-three members who served prison sentences because they were opposed to England's participation in the world slaughter.

"Not a person is being punished in any country today for opposing to that slaughter, except in the United States."

RUM DRIVE WILL GO ON OUTSIDE 3-MILE ZONE

Washington April 22 (Universal)—Despite the Federal Court of Appeals' decision in New York, holding that the rum treaties with Great Britain and other countries have not extended territorial jurisdiction, the government will press its warfare on liquor smuggling beyond the three-mile limit.

The decision will not hamper Coast Guard cutters in their pursuit of rum-runners, Department of Justice officials said. No difficulties will arise as long as seizures are made strictly under the treaties they said.

The only practical effect of the decision, it was stated, will be to force some changes in methods of instituting libel proceedings against vessels. Similar decisions have been given in other courts, of fictus and

A decision has already been reached by the department not to appeal the case, although the government has the right to ask for review.

A campaign to raise $40,000 for the Elizabeth Peabody House was launched with a tea at the Chilton Club, No. 152 Commonwealth avenue. The money is needed to cover current expenses and take care of a five-year deficit.

AUTO TRAFFIC JUMPS AT HUB'S BUSIEST SPOT

The busiest intersection in Boston Governor square, is getting busier. An increase of 8 per cent. in the automobile traffic at this point over last year was revealed today by the committee on municipal and metropolitan affairs of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

A count just taken by the committee shows that 37,760 vehicles passed through the square between 8 o'clock in the morning and midnight. Last year 35,000 vehicles were counted as they passed the spot during the same period.

Governor square is the principal gateway to and from the downtown section. Five different streets run into the square and there are 25 different turns which traffic may take on approaching this point.

The count showed that 45 per cent of the passenger cars carried only one passenger. The greater bulk of inbound traffic is between 8 and 9 in the morning. Outbound traffic is heaviest between 4:30 and 6 in the evening.

"Since getting acquainted with Rinso, I have no use for chip and bar soaps. Rinso whitens and cleans the clothes as other soaps never did. It doesn't harm the clothes or injure the hands. Indeed Rinso makes the clothes last longer because it saves them a good deal of hard rubbing."

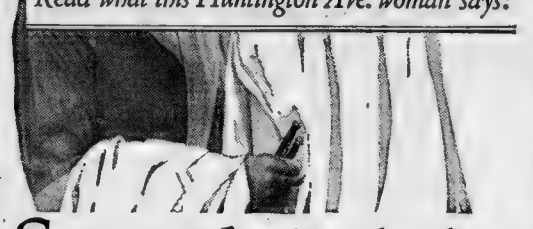
Millions use Rinso. Thousands write as letters like this.

Read what this Huntington Ave. woman says:



Snow white clothes —this safe easy way

No washboard scrubbing — no red, swollen hands — yet your week's wash comes whiter than you've ever seen it.

A new kind of soap—granulated—actually soaks clothes cleaner than hours of scrubbing could make them! Does the family wash for you without a bit of hard work—no need for a washboard!

It's so easy this new, safe way. You just soak the wash in rich, mild Rinso suds—rinse in clear water—and hang out to dry!

The dirt floats loose in the soaking and rinses off by itself. Even the most soiled and stained parts need only a gentle rub between the fingers to make them spotless.

Saves clothes—saves hands

Why rub things threadbare against a board, when Rinso soaks them whiter—so safely!

Rinso contains no acids, bleaches or harsh chemicals to injure white clothes or fast colors. So mild you could soak your finest white table cloth in it for days without harm. And no other laundry soap is easier on hands.

Even the hardest water, Rinso whips at once into rich, creamy suds that loosen the ground-in dirt and stains. Marvelous in washing machines—23 leading manufacturers recommend it for safety, and for a whiter, brighter wash.

Try it next washday

Say goodbye to bar soap, chips, washing powders, washboards! Let Rinso do all the hard work for you. Let it do next week's wash. See how much whiter clothes get without taxing your strength —even without boiling!

Get Rinso from your grocer and follow easy directions on the package.

Girls Find New Way of Rolling Their Own This Spring

South Hadley, April 22.—Time was, when a young man's fancy turned lightly to thoughts of love, the World knew it was Spring. But at Mt. Holyoke, the modern college girl does not recognize love as the harbinger of Spring; she pins her faith on the roller skate as the season's symbol.

And, by the same token, the willagers of South Hadley know that Spring has not truly arrived until the Mt. Holyoke girls don their roller skates and skim over the surface of the cement sidewalks like swallows in graceful flight.

What wots it that the birds are billing and cooing and nest building, that the trailing arbutus, the snow drop, the crocus and the pussy willow, as well as the flaming-hued bloom of rock maple herald to the world the signs of the germinal season.

South Hadley shakes its head in scepticism until it sees the first pretty maid from college on roller skates and then knows that Spring has truly arrived and that Old Man Winter has no longer license to linger in her lap.

Approach of the vernal cycle was indicated when Mt. Holyoke girls indulged in an orgy of manicures. They played for "keeps," and they bought out the entire stock of Mr. Aimon, who keeps the stationery store and is the official college marble and jackstone purveyor.

There is a lull in his business, for the college girls have turned to the roller skates and with rosy cheeks and flashing eyes their joy proclaims the joyous time of year it is—Springtime—gentle Annie.

Soon skipping ropes and rubber balls will be in demand. The drug stores are already exploiting new sundaes and other seasonal concoctions and athletic coaches at the college are putting up notices of spring sports, practices and schedules for training.

Rehearsals for the competitive song feasts and the pageants are on and the preparations for the junior prom are being made, all of them strong signs of Spring, but the girls on their roller skates, as they are today is accepted by the townspeople as the real and infallible sign that Spring is here.

PASSAIC STRIKERS BLOCK MEDIATION BY GOVERNOR

Passaic, N. J., April 22 (A.P.)—Governor Moore's move for settlement of the textile strike by mediation was threatened with obstacles today. The strikers' representatives have not been chosen and discontent over the personnel of the Governor's mediation board has been expressed. A general committee of strikers charged that attempts were being made to "separate the strikers from their leaders." Albert Weisbord, chief leader of the strikers, has termed the mediation board "an iron heel committee," and Samuel Untermyer, who in Washington, on behalf of the strikers, urged a Senate inquiry into the strike, has warned the workers to "have nothing to do with either the Governor or his committee."

CANADIANS APPEAL FROM NEW TARIFF ON AUTOS

Toronto, Ont., April 22 (A.P.)—Representatives of 200 manufacturers of automobiles and of allied industries have decided to appeal to the Federal government asking that the new reductions in the tariff on imported automobiles be cancelled and that the matter be referred to the newly-created Tariff Advisory Board. The appeal suggests that the government should have removed the excise duties and sales tax on automobiles, instead of decreasing the tariff thereby making automobiles much cheaper without disturbing the industry.

THREE HURT IN BATTLE WITH FOREST FIRE

Uxbridge, April 22.—A smoking stretch of black waste today told of the forest fire that swept across 500 acres of timberland, trapped twenty men in a wall of flame, caused injury of three, and for seven hours resisted the efforts of an army of 300 fire fighters. Scores suffered minor burns.

A lull in the wind saved twenty men mostly volunteers, who for several minutes were cut off on all sides by soaring flames. When the breeze died the trapped band scurried to safety.

Chester Leach, 40, a member of the local fire department received severe burns when he fell entangled from a moving fire truck. Arthur Young, 20, of Douglas street, was burned about the face when flames surrounded him. Thomas E. Haley was burned severely about the face and head.

Play Gives One a Chance to See How Hearts Are Broken

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Los Angeles, April 22.—Harold Lloyd is so tired hearing everyone ask him why he doesn't make another picture like "Grandma's Boy" that he has decided in his case imitation is not only the sincerest flattery, but a necessity.

His new story which will duplicate "Grandma's Boy" in everything but the small pilot, deals with a mountain youth whose carefree days are overcome by love's power, a mind over matter tale. The scenario title is "The Mountain Kid," and I was thrilled with it.

Harold Lloyd

Corinne Griffith

Suffice to say that Harold is cast as a mountain boy who comes to the city to make his fortune. He is in love with Corinne Griffith, a Fifth Avenue society girl. Corinne is in love with Harold, but her family objects to her marrying a poor boy.

Harold's solution of the problem is to become a baseball player, and in the end he wins the girl and the game.

"And," said Harold Lloyd, "please say there are no mountain feuds in my story."

Jetta Ralston will again support Harold, joining his company as soon as she finishes at the De Mille studios.

The company leaves in a week or so for the Feather River region where the exteriors will be filmed. That, dear friends, is located in Northern California.

How do you like the title "Broken Hearts of Hollywood"? I will say I think it ought to get every one into the theatres to see what hearts are broken and why.

That is the title of Monte Blue's next picture for Warner Brothers. It is an original story by Gregory Rogers Lawrence and he has been signed to play an important part. As I take it, it will be another of those films wherein the stars are shown at work and play. Monte Blue, Irene Rich, Syd Chaplin, Louise Fazenda, Patsy Ruth Miller and all the rest will lend their presence to this production.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE may have worked hard all day at the studio on her birthday Monday but she managed to get in a little recess in the evening so that I met Connie had a birthday party and invited most of the film stars who are now in Hollywood. Quite a few which has been going for me every night at Ciro's was suspended on this occasion, and I was glad my discipline was relaxed for I was good to see some of my old friends.

Connie Talmadge

This party, incidentally, was Captain McIntosh's introduction to Connie's friends and I might add confidentially that the new husband has been not only accepted into the inner circle but welcomed. There was an entertainment furnished by Ted Lewis Orchestra and a most attractive new dancer.

ALTHOUGH Famous Players-Lasky, I hear it whispered, has put in a bid for "The Great Gatsby," Scott Fitzgerald's play, it will be some time before it can be produced. This play is a success and no contract will be issued to any film company that does not contain a clause refusing to permit film distribution while the play is running. Profiting by the sad experience of "Merton of the Movies" which was a rather dismal failure because of the length of time it was held up, the powers that be at Paramount are moving slowly. Herbert Brenon will be given the play as his next production if satisfactory arrangements can be made between theatrical interests and the film company.

ACCUSED Jack Gilbert of trying to imitate William Shakespeare? Constance's party. He wore a new miniature goatee specially grown for "Bardleys the Magnificent" and he looks very much like some of the earlier pictures taken of the bard of Avon. Jack, I think, does these dis guises well. They are picturesque.

WHEN Richard Howard reached New York Saturday probably one of the first matters he took up with his executive board was a move to make Corinne Griffith a First National star. Now I know that probably doesn't mean much to the world outside of folks who thought all the time Corinne was a First National player. But it means a considerable amount of cash to First National for they will buy her contract from the Corinne Griffith Productions Company and dissolve that organization, producing her pictures themselves. Her first picture under the new arrangement will be "Lilies."

ALL filmland stars have been interested in meeting Edmund Goldings new girl. She is none other than his sister, Iris, who with Eddie's mother reached Hollywood a few days ago. Eddie says Iris is the only girl who has kissed him since he joined Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer who wasn't looking for a job.

I THINK one of the greatest surprises in film circles these days is Lowell Sherman in the role of a devoted husband. Much to everyone's surprise he admits to his friends who will listen to him that he is the happiest husband in captivity and that his marriage to Pauline Garon is the best event in his life. Sherman has been married to Pauline for a year and a half.

CLOTHIERS PLAN NEW RULES

Now that we have the Volstead act with us, for whatever it is worth, another time-honored institution is threatened. This time it's the clothier who threatens men's rights. Because men like to have clothes fit them nicely the retail clothing merchants are debating the question of assessing the cost of alterations on the purchaser.

Then again the pleasure of purchasing clothes at bargain sales may be curtailed for it was voted to hold only two mark downs per year.

The two questions were considered at a luncheon of the New England Clothiers and Furnishers' Association, but the alterations problem was given a lease of life until they met again on May 18.

The Letters of Queen Victoria

Human Appeal in Private Documents of Greatest Woman Ruler

A Paper That Goes Into the Home, Dependable, Fearless, Entertaining and Instructive

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

BOSTON, THURSDAY, APRIL 22, 1926

SECOND SECTION

LANDLADY BATTLES SUSPECT ON STREET

Benjamin Disraeli, Earl of Beaconsfield, who attacked Queen Victoria's government as too friendly to Germany.

THE sudden death of King Frederick VII. of Denmark and the succession to the throne of King Christian IX., father of the Princess of Wales, has brought the long simmering Schleswig-Holstein war cauldron to the boiling point.

Austria and Prussia are drawn together by the common desire to add these two Danish duchies to the Confederation of German States.

Queen Victoria, forced to choose between Germany, the country of her mother's birth, and Denmark, of her daughter-in-law, the future Queen of England, sympathizes with Germany, but above all she wants to keep England out of a war that is likely to involve all Europe if Great Britain once goes in.

In today's instalment of "The Letters of Queen Victoria," which the Boston American is publishing with the permission of King George of England, the Queen wages a furious battle with her own Cabinet Ministers, who, reflecting English opinion, are for taking the side of the smaller power.

Published by permission of His Majesty King George V., through arrangement with Longmans, Green & Co. of New York. Copyright in Canada.

Queen Victoria to Earl Russell
(Foreign Secretary)

WINDSOR CASTLE, 16th Nov., 1863.—The Queen hees that the King of Denmark is dead!

The Queen is much alarmed at the danger which this entails of immediate war, the arrangement of 1852 never having been accepted by the Diet (of the confederation of German States) and being, as Lord Russell well knows, contrary to the rights of succession existing in Holstein and Schleswig.

She urges the Government most strongly to do nothing without consultation with the other Powers, but especially with Germany.

Queen Victoria to the King of the Belgians

WINDSOR CASTLE, 18th November, 1863

My Beloved Uncle—This death of the King of Denmark is a terrible business. My beloved Albert felt very strongly the injustice of the Protocol of '52, which was a Russian intrigue; but he also felt that, if the Danes fulfilled the

DIZZY BASKETS DAZE HARVARD

The gyrating Borneo baskets, which mystify scientists, today are being put through a "third degree," by men of Harvard who specialize in degrees, at Peabody Museum.

An especially delicate electrical machine has been brought from Cruft laboratory to determine whether the baskets are motivated by static or some other mysterious energizing agent.

After a pause, probably due to some temperamental cause, the revolving baskets of Borneo, will seem to be an incarnation of whirling dervishes, again have taken up their "Carabet" stunt and are gyrating with such mysterious gyrations that they have the Harvard scientists, those who possess degrees, and those who are tyros, puzzled alike.

When Peabody Museum closed Tuesday, the baskets had paused in their demonstration of perpetual motion and it was thought the phenomena was over. But it seems that the Protocol of '52, which was a Russian intrigue; but he also felt that. If the Danes fulfilled the South End Landlady Meets Suspected Robber; Follow Police Order to Letter

Mrs. Adele Azor, South End lunchhouse keeper, knows one to obey instructions, so she hung on to William Pappas of New York today, battling with him furiously until a motorcycle officer whirled into view and arrested him.

He was arraigned charged with the larceny of $15 from Mrs. Azor. A hunt is on for an accomplice.

According to the charge, Pappas called at the Azor house, No. 23 Pelham street, and rented a room for $2. He walked Mrs. Azor change a bill from her handbag and then said his brother was due in a few minutes and asked a room.

The brother came and was shown to the upstairs. But while he was there with Mrs. Azor Pappas is alleged to have cleaned out the handbag and then departed with the brother.

Police Captain Driscoll instructed Mrs. Azor to flash either of the two men if she saw them again, and to hang on while she alarmed the neighborhood with shrieks. Today she saw two men at Newland and West Brookline streets, seized one and screamed lustily while the second fled.

Motorcycle officer Davidson, riding in Shawmut avenue, heard the screams and whirled into West Brookline street just as the battling Pappas broke away and pounded through Newland street.

The officer sent a pistol bullet before a hundred yards had been covered.

FLOODS CAUSE BIG LOSS IN TEXAS; SIX DEATHS

Dallas, Tex., April 22 (A.P.)—Rising streams in southwest and central Texas today threatened to increase the damage to crops, high waves and bridges, caused by general rain and electrical storms. The death toll remained at six. Central State cities reported the heaviest precipitation since 1919.

A twelve-inch flood, just in the vicinity of Huntsville and the breaking of a dam which held Huntsville's water supply, flooded the countryside. Water which covered the tracks of the International Great Northern Railroad piled up for the second time a train carrying Governor Miriam A. Ferguson and her party returning to Austin from a visit to the penitentiary at Huntsville.

"DISARMAMENT"—No. 1

"SEND my enemy to me," I often say. "I shall disarm him."

And I feel that I COULD disarm my enemy!

Hate is an unpleasant companion. Love and happiness make you so much happier—— "A kind word turneth away wrath," says the Bible, and how often have I verified the absolute truth of this!

People have come to me full of resentment, unjust, accusing. If I had flared up and answered their wrath with my own the situation would have been hopeless. Yet some people glory in their anger. I used to when I was young, so I know what it feels like. But I have quite given it up.

Once during the war, I remember a curious scene.

I was visiting some hospitals in some of our smaller towns which were full of Russian soldiers turned Bolshevik. The day before they had torn down our portraits from the station waiting rooms, declaring that there were no more kings and queens.

I was asked not to go to that town, it was dangerous. My answer was that as long as I was Queen of this country, I would go wherever I felt I must go. So, in spite of warnings, I went.

All day I behaved as though there were no Russians in the place. I even walked through the streets from one hospital to the other. Whenever I met a Russian I bowed and smiled at him like one amiably greeting a stranger within her walls.

There was not much of a smile in response, yet more than one cap came off, for at the bottom of his heart the Russian is a good fellow; only he thought that he had suddenly become invested freedom and equality.

That evening my train stood in the station. I was at my window after a long, tiring day. I saw something unusual was happening on the platform, which was filling slowly but steadily with Russian soldiers, hundreds of them.

"There will be trouble," said a warning voice at my elbow. "Come away."

But a little idea was forming in my mind. I will tell you tomorrow what it was, and how it worked.

QUINCY RAISING 'HOME FUND'

The Quincy Homes Protection Association, organized as a result of a fight over the city's present zoning plan, has pledged itself to raise several thousand dollars to keep Quincy a town of beautiful, suburban homes rather than a centre of apartment dwellers and industry.

An "information committee," to inform all residents and voters of the details in their way. Thereafter, thousand cards will be distributed to members to a final vote of the issue on May 12.

At the second meeting of the newly organized association, Charles H. Ivey of No. 18 Virginia road, Quincy, was elected treasurer.

Certain groups are opposed to the plan which restricts residential sections to single dwellings and bans business enterprises and apartment houses.

A. K. Embleton, president of the Wollaston Improvement Association, secretary of the business association of Quincy. With him are Mrs. Henry M. Faxon, president of the Quincy Women's Club, and other women.

ST. LAWRENCE RIVER OPEN TO NAVIGATION

Montreal, April 22 (C.N.S.)—The St. Lawrence River today was opened to navigation, after being frozen over all Winter. The freight steamship Oxonian, first vessel from overseas to navigate the river, this morning was reported in the Gulf of St. Lawrence en route to Quebec. A second steamer, the Warwickshire, bound for Montreal was being assisted through the fields of floating ice by the government ice breaker Minto.

FIND CAUSES OF HUMAN ILLS

Dallas, Tex., April 22 (A.P.)—Results of prehistoric animal fossil studies throw new light on the cause of modern diseases, Dr. Nebraska doctors told American Medical Association convention city today.

Doctors F. B. Young and A. L. Cooper of State U., Neb., suggested that a study of the diseases that abate of animals in prehistoric ages might throw light on man's own self from a similar fate.

Dr. Young read a paper in which he stated that many present-day diseases have been found in the fossil remains of great reptiles, the saber tooth tiger and the last wolf of prehistoric times.

The findings, he believes, dispel several theories on causes of disease and among these is the one that teeth and jaw deformities are due to "improper nourishment."

Dr. Young said that "many animals' muscles, their waning from lack of food that was necessary for their existence and from a struggle with disease among the animals, he said.

Diseases prevalent among human beings today did not differ from those now prevalent, and among these is cancer, Dr. Young said, he believed certain types disappeared because of man's widespread infection, and he favors this explanation rather than the better known theories of climatical or geographical changes.

Trapped in Home, Shoots One Man, and Sheriff's Posse Sets House Afire

Fayetteville, Ga., April 22 (A.P.)—No inquest was to be held today over the body of Clint Brown, sixty, a bachelor farmer burned to death when officers set fire to his home to "smoke him out," according to Sheriff B. W. Adams. An investigation may be held later.

Brown was caught in connection with the slaying of Reub Sutton, whose riddled body was found on a neighboring farm. Wounded himself and two others, all shot at Brown, he entered his home and refused to surrender. Brown fired a number of shots at officers, it is said, before he was killed.

Sheriff Brown was wounded in the leg when Brown opened fire on the posse. Two others were slightly wounded.

The warrant for Brown was sworn out by George Tinsley, a neighbor, after Brown had been arrested charged with the murder of Sutton. Tinsley and Brown

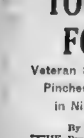
GENEWICH DUE TO TWIRL FOR THE BRAVES TODAY

MOGRIDGE TOO MUCH FOR PHILS

Veteran Southpaw Shines in Pinches; Tribe Wins Out in Ninth Inning Rally

By NICK FLATLEY

THE Braves have paved the way to great popularity in these parts this season. They returned from a disastrous road trip, were greeted by a great and enthusiastic throng, and came through with a rollicking finish that made them a million friends more or less.



Nick Flatley.

The team that was the sensation of the last month of the 1925 race brought to the city ingredients back to the big town of great pitching, slick fielding and scoring when it was needed.

Random is all right to start the season on a very happy period for the Hancroft's fellows, for they chased the dreaded jinx right back under the bed where it belongs.

And it was a hideous one. Phils have been setting on the Braves' throats since the Quakers are touted to beat than the Pirates or Giants or other classy clubs. The jinx persisted in the opening series this year at Philadelphia, where the Rannys dropped three out of four.

The jinx was lingering in the offing all day yesterday, while old George Mogridge and young Jack Knight were having a whale of a pitchers' battle.

In three or four occasions the Phils were ready to break through and upset the apples, but Mogridge bore down nobly, attaching the craft of the years to natural skill the defenses tightened up, and defeat was pushed aside.

All that thrilled the crowd. Then a flashing ninth inning broke up the ball game, and made everybody, except the Phils, perfectly happy. It was a fine augury for a good season.

FRANK GIBSON, a hustling fighting ball player always, was the hero of the climax. His was sent up to pinch hit in the ninth with the bases choked. The wheezing Brer that he rattled into left is probably home run across, but would never get more runs had that pinch-hit needed. But Heinie Neis tied in from third and the athletes and the crowd went away from there thinking of baseball time and the return of spring and other pleasant things.

Gibby, with his rescue blow, shared the day's big glory with George Mogridge, who was hit nobly but six times, who fanned batters in masterly fashion when hits meant serious. But Gibson, Heinie Neis, subbing third baseman, had a lot to do with the success of the occasion.

FOHL SENDS ROOKIE TO HILL

New York, April 22.—Those aggressive Red Sox were rather disappointed at Howard Shanks's failure to win here after they went out and procured the tall chap an early four-run lead at the expense of Sam Jones. However, this is another day, and the 1926 spirit on Fohl's club is to battle away every afternoon.

Tony Welzer, who relieved Zahniser last week in Boston and did nobly, is likely to be sent out this afternoon to battle with Herb Pennock, the former Red Sox left-hander.

The Yankee opening was pretty much a repetition of the Red Sox opening day carnival in Boston. Had Howard Shanks pitched with his usual skill against the Yanks, Boston might have won both of those games.

But there never is any telling when that devastating Yankee battery will find a pitcher's range. Long Howard appeared to be doing nicely, when the Yankees suddenly jumped on him with two out in the fourth. Five successive clouts flew from the Yankee bats, the last one being a homer into the right field bleachers by Earl Combs.

DEMPSEY WILL BOX WILLS OR TUNNEY

By Universal Service.

Fort Worth, Tex., April 22.—Jack Dempsey will defend his world's heavyweight championship title against Harry Wills or Gene Tunney in the Yankee Stadium, New York City, or in the huge arena on Boyle's Thirty Acres in New Jersey on September 16, according to the terms of a contract the champion signed here with Tex Rickard.

Dempsey is being guaranteed $450,000 as his end of the purse, with the usual option of taking a percentage of the gate. The contract further stipulates that Dempsey cannot partake in any "warm-up" bouts and that his opponent will not be named until 90 days before the date of the titular bout and that the site will not be disclosed until July 16. Other details of the contract were not revealed.

Rickard waived aside reports from New York that the boxing commission would revoke his license and publicly declared that Dempsey Tunney as Dempsey's opponent, and restated that his choice would be between the two sites and that Tunney would be the champion's opponent

Muldoon Backs Rickard in Dempsey Squabble

New York, April 22 (A.P.).—Tex Rickard will not face united opposition from the State Athletic Commission in his plans to promote a Jempsey-Tunney title bout in September, in spite of the threat of James A. Farley, commissioner, to disqualify the promoter.

William Muldoon, eighty-one-year-old member of the commission and former chairman of it, has come out in support of Rickard's plans and taken sharp issue with Farley.

Muldoon is quoted today as decidedly opposed to a bout between Dempsey and Harry Wills, while believing a "Tunney-Dempsey fight would be far more interesting.

"I approve of Rickard's actions," Muldoon said. "All this threatening Rickard, these announcements that he will be kept out of boxing here, are ridiculous to anybody familiar with the situation. My term of five years association with boxing in an administrative capacity expires on July 1 and rather than be a party to any such action as is being contemplated against Rickard I will quit."

CLEVELAND TO DEFEND HANDBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says Chick Evans

What makes the golf swing so hard for the average player is not the difficulty of it but its utter simplicity. It is this simple fact that baffles All good golfers know how simple it is and they often marvel at the struggles of those who, thinking they are trying to accomplish it, are but confusing themselves and their pupils to a confusion so perhaps added to by the great practice of "the blind leading the blind." What a common sight it is to behold golfers with evidence too plainly that they know little of the swing attempting to reveal the secrets to others. The curse of the sport, beyond all question is this tendency of one player to instruct another. Wrong ideas thus get a wide circulation and impractical ideas still more. Lessons for the player who attempts to take one only and follow it, to stick to his resolution

18 B. C. Runners Off for Carnival

Eighteen Boston College runners will leave Boston tonight to compete in the Penn relays. The Eagle contingent consists of five relay teamss and two event performers. The relay teams are the two-mile, four-mile, distance-medley, shuttle, hurdle and freshman teams. Frank Hussey in the dash and Art McManus in the hammer are the individual performers.

McKillop, McCloskey, Daley and Ingoldsby are the members of the two-mile team with the first three and Captain Cavanaugh making up the distance-medley team. Cavanaugh, Joyce, O'Brien and Mc Laughlin are the four-mile quartet. The shuttle hurdle team race, an innovation at the carnival, will have Boston College competing against Princeton, Michigan and other colleges. Dick Murphy, Riha, Dupane and Dooley are the Eagle four to limber up.

Tramp Caddies Banned at Open Tournament

New York, April 22 (A.P.).—Itinerant caddies, golf's soldiers of fortune and uncrowned heroes of man a national tournament, will be missing from the cast of the open championship this year at Scioto.

Their exclusion from the major golf competition of the season, decreed by officials because their visits are considered to have had a "demoralizing effect" on local club-carriers, mar an initial step to discourage a traveling corps of between 50 and 100 veteran campaigners—experienced carriers who follow their ideals from tournament to tournament. For the first time in the history of a major competition the bag-toting privilege at Columbus, O., will be confined to local caddies next July.

Walker, Turfman, Ill

San Diego, Cal., April 22 (A.P.)—William Walker, whose horses have been entered in many leading turf programs in the United States and Canada, is seriously ill at his home near San Isidro, a suburb.

STARS TO RACE IN BIG EVENT AT LYNN

By STED CHANDLER.

Distance running, a popular sport about Boston now, will shift its scene of action to Lynn on Saturday, May 8, when the Lynn Italian Athletic Association will stage its second annual ten-mile handicap road race.

At 3 o'clock that afternoon a fine field will start the gruelling event, which will include Clarence DeMar, Jimmie Henigan, Stephens and Gus Barbato, who are numbered among the best at the game.

Sted Chandler

Last year, when the race was inaugurated, Jimmeinie Henigan captured both the first prize and the time prize, settling the course record at 54 minutes 4 seconds. DeMar finished fourth.

There were 65 entries last year, and now, although the run is still three weeks away, 65 names have been registered. Barbato ran away with the recent 10-mile run of the Cathedral Y. M. C. A., and Stephens took first place in the O'Connell Post race, so both of these men are known to have clubs. Tommie Henigan, the "Smiler's" well-known brother, has also sent in his blank.

The idea behind these runs of the Italian A. A. is to gradually expand into a real marathon. The backers of the run claim the distance game is waxing popular in Lynn, and that the public is strongly behind it. Fully 20,000 persons witnessed the race last year, and a still larger crowd is expected to be on hand at the coming event.

Manager Humbert Cirafaca requests that all runners who wish to enter this year's run get in communication with him at their earliest convenience, and he extends to them the cordial invitation of the L. A. A. to compete. By sending in their registration numbers and names Cirafice at 9 Witt street, West Lynn, contestants will be taken care of immediately.

CHARLEY HOFF TO TRY FOR NEW VAULT RECORD

Des Moines, Iowa, April 22 (A.P.)—Belated entries for the annual Drake relays were announced today as many of the 2,500 athletes who will participate in the carnival Friday and Saturday arrived.

Charley Hoff, world's champion pole vaulter, who will appear in a special event, attempting to break his own record, arrived yesterday and swung over the bar a few times to limber up.

Golf Notes

Ray Van Arsdale of the Woodland golf club is proving a fair bantey brand of razor to the boys at Franklin Park on Saturday traveling smoothly over the early frosty fairways and has got himself down for a best performance.

Jack Burns, the former Mont expert and present automobile seller of the Reading district is back in town and will be seen in action at his old course, the Oakley golf Club.

Eddie Moore and Joe Kennedy opened home from the Coast the first of the week and report a fine trip. Between rounds, they both reported extremely up to the minute. They'll be back in the links for the opening as to business, which is at it should be.

It is pleasing to learn that Dave Hoven will be connected with the Wachusett Country Club at North Worcester this season. Dave has been in the game for years.

Everything is in readiness for the opening of Franklin Park golf course on Saturday and late spring like conditions prevail. Saturday's opening is always an event in the annals of the game and although it was a disappointment to the members that they were unable to tee off on the holiday, the links will be in far better shape by the end of the week than they were at the start.

Although the weather has been against golf, Johnny Duff of the Wollaston Golf Club has been very busy teaching since the start of the season. This season Duff has been in the game for years.

Joe Farren will not carry the colors of the Wollaston Golf Club this season. It is reported that he has settled down permanently with Fish and Richardson, the well known firm of golf experts in Boston. Farren will be a valuable addition to the Fall and Spring golf staffs of this well known firm.

Jack Leary will be on the job again at the Belmont Golf Club. Jack took over the duties of the club professional a couple of years ago and he made a decided hit.

Manager Dave Bancroft of the Braves has put the thumbs down on golf as far as his charges are concerned. He only gave them the two days' rest to allow the Braves to play golf in Sunday.

George Aubin and John Cowan will play an exciting 36 hole tournament of nine holes each, at North the first of next month. The Aubin-Cowan match, featured this tournament a year ago and the former is anxious to reverse the 3-up penalty.

Wallace Goldfine, who won the club championship at Belmont last season, has been taking some lessons from George Arthur and Dave Hunter and has cut a number of scores off his score.

Manager Bob Harlow announces that Walter Hagen will not make any bookings until he secures from the British open of Hagen fails to get the title the rest of exhibitions will be the same as last season, but if he returns as the champion he will be the only professional to hold the open championship title for the second time.

RED CHAPMAN IN LINE FOR BOUT WITH KID KAPLAN

RED CHOICE IN TUSSLE TONIGHT

Levine and Parker Clash in Semi-Final; Hassen Tackles Rocky Stone

Boxing Menu Tonight

Red Chapman, Dorchester, vs. Herbie Schaeffer, Chicago, ten rounds.

Ruby Levine, Maine, vs. Terry Parker, North End, eight rounds.

Rocky Stone, Roxbury, vs. Hagen Hassen, Turkey, six rounds.

Red Meriden, Meriden, Ct., vs. Frankie Moore, Lowell, six rounds.

Benny Nelson, Lowell, vs. Harold Ellenshaw, Brockton, four rounds.

Lee Kelly, Ireland, vs. George Lahaie, Brockton, four rounds.

By JACK CONWAY

RED CHAPMAN, Dorchester featherweight, is likely to get a bout with Kid Kaplan for the world's featherweight championship if he defeats Herbie Schaeffer of Chicago in their ten-round bout at the Commercial A. C.'s show at Mechanics Building tonight.

Jack Conway

Johnny Dundee is billed to meet Kaplan for the title in Brooklyn in June, but it is reported that the ankle infection which made it necessary for the Scotch Wop to call off his tussle with Jack Griff at New Orleans will also force him out of his meeting with Kap in

Before he can secure a tussle with Kaplan the ex-pat Chapman must first win over Schaeffer who is making his Boston debut this p. m.

THE speculative element has made Red a favorite. This is to be expected in view of his long run of victories. In his last Boston start, he came through with a win over Babe Herman

Chapman has prepared himself carefully for tonight's tussle as he is in line for a match with Kid Kaplan. It looks as though Johnny Dundee isn't going through with his meeting with Kaplan, billed for June, and Chapman is considered the logical man to pit against the featherweight king

All of which means that Red will be in there shooting for all he is worth tonight. He will try to score a decisive victory over the aggressive Schaeffer

THERE should also be plenty of fireworks when Ruby Levine, featherweight champion of Maine, and Terry Parker of the North End collide in the semi-final of eight frames. Levine has been one of the sparkling successes of the flatic game in Maine. His whirling attacks and ability to sock have sent his flatic star high. Parker has swapped blows with stubborn opposition in the past and is of the opinion he will upset Levine.

Jack Curley will introduce Hagen Hassen, Turkish heavyweight, who will swap blows with Rocky Stone of Roxbury in a six-round frolic. Hassen started as a wrestler, but when he discovered he had a punch that could knock out heavyweights he decided to give chase to Dempsey.

Hassen is twenty-six years of age and a full fledged heavyweight. He is six feet tall and of splendid physique

Red Meriden of Meriden, Ct., and Frankie Moore of Lowell will open the show with a six round setto

FIGHTS I CAN'T FORGET

by TAD — America's Greatest Boxing Authority

THIS is the twenty-fifth of a series of famous fights covered by Tad, the greatest sporting cartoonist and leading authority on pugilism in this country.

Driscoll Fooled Attell

ABE ATTELL found on February 19, 1909, that his reign as premier featherweight boxer of the world had come to an end. On that night Jem Driscoll, of Cardiff, Wales, proved that he and not the shifty Abraham was entitled to what honors there were to be distributed.

At the National Athletic Club—the same building now occupied by the Pioneer Sporting Club on East Twenty-fourth street—with the club rooms filled to capacity, the little Briton opened the eyes of the crowd and closed one of Abe's

He fought ten full rounds. He didn't knock the American out, but he had such a lead that there was no question as to which was the betterm an.

As they came up for the first round Driscoll, with his curly head and Kid McCoy-like eyes, looked much smaller than Attell. They started feeling each other out and both missed jabs

As Driscoll backed up Attell jumped in at him like a panther, swinging with right and left. Driscoll was there when Abe started that consignment of slams, but one twenty-fifth of a second later he was gone, and the American champion was sprawling on the floor, looking as cheap as a lead nickel.

ATTELL had beaten hundreds of clever lads, beaten them with ease, but this fellow Driscoll was a phantom. The idea of him having Jem right there on the ropes; right there he had had hundreds of others; right there ready for the killing and—then to miss a mile. Oh, boy! that made Abe prick up his ears and take notice'

Abe jumped up and slowly started after the dancing Briton again. He crawled up near him, thought out his plan of attack, was just about to send in when his his head bent back from a jab on the nose. He was forced to start all over again. Just as he was ready to plant something on the person of Driscoll another left bumped his nose and off he went again

It seemed like a dream to sit there and see this fellow Driscoll jab Attell, the boy we thought to be the marvel of cleverness. It must have surprised Abraham, too. It did. He wasn't the same Abe at all.

The Englishman had it on Abe in most every way you could figure. Like a duck shooter, Abe aimed his blows a little in front of the object, hoping to catch it on the fly. Sometimes he did, and then again he didn't.

WHEN Attell came into the ring he was chewing gum. After the first round the gum he was working on had disappeared. He had all he could do to keep out of the way of Jem's jabs, and the effort wasted in chewing gum did him no good.

Driscoll was working on Abe's right eye, trying to close it, and the latter's head was bobbing back and forth from the lefts when suddenly Jem dropped over a right to the chin and Abraham reeled.

He rocked and shook, but Driscoll, in his anxiety to drop another in the same place, shot wild and Abe stalled the round out. In the middle of the seventh Attell came on fast and Driscoll showed some signs of weariness in the last three rounds, but Jem was so far in front there was no doubt as to the winner.

What's back of this shift in cigarette popularity?

Is it only a desire for change?

Is it a matter of price?

Or is it all a question of taste?

No—mere desire for change will not explain why so many thousands of smokers all over the country are changing from other cigarettes to Chesterfield.

It's something more fundamental.

No—price does not account for this sweeping turn-about in cigarette popularity, for Chesterfield is sold at the popular price—it costs the same as any of the other largest selling brands.

Yes—that's the answer. It is taste and taste alone that explains Chesterfield's sweeping gains. And taste is a matter of tobacco quality.

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

WATCH 'OPERATING' IN YOUR BUDGET

Boston Evening American Offers Aid to Housewives in Planning Expenditures of Income

By MARTHA LEE
BUDGET TALK 23

"We are paying for our own home. Does the water tax come out of the earner fund?" This is a frequent question from the earnest budgeteer.

No, the water tax must come out of your operating fund, and to answer another question at the same time, fire insurance on the household furniture, and burglar insurance also come out of operating which is generally given in per cent. of the total family income. All service such as laundry, shoe shines, shaves, manicures, shampoos, waves, etc. come out of this elastic fund. Coal, wood, electricity and gas, household supplies under $1.00, such as starch, wax, lamp chimneys, dishes, brushes etc., also come under this heading.

The telephone bills must also be paid from the allotment and any incidentals as carpets, pictures, furniture to the market or on errands for the house and janitor or gardener service.

It is under operating that many leaks will be found, which, if they could be relieved and added to the personal fund, would result in more pleasure, a broader social life and better education for the young folks of the family. Of course it is an absolutely necessary operating expense six feet, light and water. The remaining money is used for the other items. The coal bill seems to be the housewife's biggest bugaboo. Very few bills are the best guide to how much coal you will need next year, but if you have no record, any good dealer will estimate the amount you will need if you tell him the size of your house, its location, etc. One dealer tells me that a ton of coal for each 100 square feet of floor space is a conservative estimate, but of course a high studded house takes more coal than a low and the thickness of the walls makes a difference and even the kind of plaster used. When building, it is well to remember that a house having lining paper in the walls will take less coal than an unlined one.

Once you get Dad enthusiastic over this budget business and the annual budget can be kept without Dad's cooperation he may make it one of his indoor sports to try to beat the coal budget estimate. You can do your part by carefully watching the kitchen range, thereby saving many a foot of the black diamonds.

The electric light bill is one of the frequent sources of waste at home. However, if you can shame your family in black and white that if they will overcome their careless habit of leaving lights burned and there will be many extra large rounds from the butcher, or other trimmings, what not this Summer. I am sure they will be glad to do their share to stop the leak. Also guard against the wasteful use of hot water if it is heated by a gas heater.

Watch this column for more on the operating subject soon.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mrs. T. L. has a fluctuating income and her husband is away from home for himself. She figures it averages $40 a week. For five in the family this should be budgeted:

after, $8, including business carfare; clothing, $5; savings, $4; food, $12 operating, $6 and personal, $6. Always budget the smallest weekly salary. Then your income runs over this amount the difference can be added to savings or personal.

Mrs. C. R. T.—I am sorry I can not help you unless you can give me the figures of your entire income. It is not fair to budget a housekeeping allowance.

Mrs. A. J. F. has $23.70 a week with two in the family. Pays $21 rent, $6 a month on furniture, $6 a month on course of study for husband. Try shelter $7, food $9, clothing $4, operating including coal $5, personal $2 and savings $2. Furniture payments will come out of personal, also husband's tuition.

Dear Mrs. C. H.—$45 a week with $40 rent, 3 in the family, will use up savings $4, rent $9.40 including business carfare, food $13, including $5 office lunch are only two of the three that have to be clothed out of this budget; operating $6, including coal and $4.60 personal. Insurance comes out of savings and union dues out of personal.

Mrs. O. W. R., with two adults and two children in the family is budgeting $36 thusly: Food $10, rent $8, insurance $1.45, Christmas Club $1.50, Co-operative Bank $1.25, coal $1, milk $1.04, $1 on a back bill, gas $1, washing $1.50, telephone 60c, and radio 50c for replace batteries and tubes when needed, $4.75 on land for a home. She wants to know how the remainder should be divided. This saves $4.90 to cover clothing, doctor's and dentist's bills, newspapers and magazines, amusements, personal spending money for candy, tobacco, etc., and lodge, club and church dues.

You'll certainly be a splendid manager if you can save as much as you are out of your present income. Your savings, including insurance, Christmas Club, co-operative bank, back bill and $3.75 on the land, come to $4.90, whereas the standard percentage on the $46 budget would give you $4 savings, $7.50 for shelter, including business carfares, $10 for food, $5.50 for clothing, $6 for operating and $4 for personal.

Mrs. O. F. D. writes from New Hampshire: "I have a budget form and do a little passed in arranging it. Husband's salary is $80. We have a Ford. Food about $7; rent, including light and heat, $4; milk for six months' baby, $11 $8 personal allowance for myself, insurance $71 a year. How can I have a fixed savings in the bank every week?"

Try saving, $4; shelter $4; food, $8; clothing, $5; operating and personal, each $2. Since husband does all the work on the car himself, it is not so very expensive to keep your car. In the Boston Americans of April 18 you no doubt noticed each budget heading fully itemized.

Mr. Budget shows how to use the Boston Evening American Home Budget form. He is pictured pointing out the figures for the first budget period to an interested housewife, who plans to make the most of her income.

"The Temptress" -:- By Ibanez

"The Temptress" is to be filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as a special Cosmopolitan production.

HE wore a dinner coat, and a fine and comfortably ironed dress shirt, and then finally he stepped into the room, he did so with a certain languid grace as though he were presenting himself in a Paris drawing room. After a slight bow to the maid he bent over Elena and kissed her hand.

"I, too, felt like dressing for dinner this evening Marquesa, as in the good old times."

Elena pleased by this homage, made the new arrival sit down beside her. For the rest of the evening she devoted most of her attentions to the Frenchman, while Pirovani sulked in a corner, making small attempt to conceal his displeasure, though he was obviously impressed by Canteros's aristocratic appearance.

For several evenings after this the contractor failed to appear. Moreno, curious about the reason for his absence, called at the Indian and came back with some news.

"Pirovani's gone to Bahia Blanca without telling us what for. He must have some important business on."

So the tertulias continued. Canteros in his dinner coat still enjoyed Elena's presence, and Moreno got into his swallow tail every evening for no other purpose apparently than to carry on his desultory conversations with Terra Blanca. Even the Marquis appeared one evening in a dinner coat, and when Robledo made a gesture of astonishment, he gave a shrug and a nod towards his wife.

On the fifth evening Moreno came rushing in to announce that Pirovani had returned. "He may be here at any moment now."

And since Pirovani had provided them all with a subject for speculation, everyone had the sense of waiting for him to put in an appearance.

Then the door opened and, pausing on the threshold as Canteros had done, in order to allow the onlookers to get the full effect of his attire, Pirovani appeared, in a frock coat that was resplendent with the lapels of a heavily ribbed silk, the fibres of which were as thick as those of wool, a white waistcoat richly embroidered, a white camellia in his buttonhole and a large ribbon, from which dangled a monocle.

He bowed low before the marquesa, whose hand he raised to his lips.

Elena's eyes gleamed with suppressed amusement. But she welcomed him and made him sit down beside her. Canteros, visibly offended by his rivals triumph, abruptly left the group, while Moreno muttered maladdity.

"From dinner coats to swallow tails," growled Robledo. "We'll be holding carnival out on the desert soon, and the woman will be driving us all crazy before we get through."

He glanced with relief at the young American, who, like himself, still wore his simple work clothes.

"What a commotion that sort of woman stirs up in a frontier settlement, where men live alone, and have no other distract on from their work" he thought "And she's only just begun. Who knows what she'll try next? We may all end up by killing one another on her account."

With a cynical shrug, Robledo turned his back on the group around Elena.

"Another little glass of mate, comisario!" The police commissioner of the camp sat opposite don Carlos Rojas in the latter's living room.

It was evident from the rancher's expression that something had gone wrong with him. At a meeting of the local cattle association he had lost another steer, and he was angrily attributed the loss to Maximo Duras, who of late years altogether too many pieces of land to the east of the town. As for himself was the official victim of the loss of his trade, in addition to the disappearance of his steer, seemed to him an insufferable outrage.

As he talked with don Roque, the rancher worked himself up to the point where he came out finally with the statement that there was no justice to be had in Rio Negro.

"But," protested the comisario in a tone of discouragement, "I sent that fellow up to the capital of the territory three separate times under guard, in fact he went as a prisoner, and each time he got off scot-free. No proofs! What could we do? No one will testify against him."

But Rojas continued his protests, and the commissioner, to quiet his growing irritation, promised to make a more determined effort than ever this time to bring the thief to justice.

But at this point the conversation of the two Argentinians was interrupted by Celinda's arrival.

While the two men lit their cigars and went on with their talk about Maximo Duras, Celinda left the ranch-riding her horse with a side-saddle.

A half hour later, however, she was cantering along the river bank wearing boy's clothes and mounted on a different horse. Suddenly she caught sight of a group of riders approaching and stopped.

stipulations, there was nothing for it but abiding by it. Now we were on the point of getting matters in a fair train of settlement when this wretched King died, and poor King Christian has signed the very thing which the Diet will insist the Execution (punishment by a deputised State or States) is necessary for

What can be done? If Denmark were to fulfill the stipulations of the Treaty, then Austria, Prussia, and the other Powers would be obliged to stand by the Protocol of '52 unjust and had as that was Still, anything is better than a war, for where is that to end? It will give our mischievous neighbor (Emperor Napoleon III.) the opportunity he has been anxiously looking for, and God knows when it will end! On the other hand, to tell Germany she is to submit to the incorporation of Schleswig would be an offence she would never submit to!

Some sort of mediation or arbitration ought to be thought of, if possible.

I am miserable, wretched, almost frantic without my Angel to stand by me, and put the others down, and in their right place! No respect is paid to my opinion now, and this helplessness almost drives me wild, and in the family his loss is more dreadfully felt than anywhere.

Oh, God, why, oh! why was all this permitted? and now this year everything that interested my Angel and that he understood takes place, and he is not here to help us, and to write those admirable memoranda which are gospel now. Oh! my fate is too, too dreadful! If I could but go soon to him and be all well! Day and night I have no rest or peace. God's will be done.

"I must bear it," these were the patient words of a poor dying old woman in a lodge here, who suffered tortures from internal cancer. "I must bear it, till the Lord pleases to take me," and so I must say.

Earl Russell to Queen Victoria.

FOREIGN OFFICE, 23rd Nov. 1863.—Lord Russell feels very confident that, if Austria and Prussia are persuaded that your Majesty's Government feels a serious interest in the integrity of Denmark, peace may be preserved, but, if the question is allowed to linger, the result will be war

Any surrender of the integrity of Denmark would be very unpopular in this country.

Lord Derby and Mr. Disraeli have hitherto reproached your Majesty's Government with being too favorable to Germany.

"Justice on All Sides"

Queen Victoria to Earl Russell

WINDSOR CASTLE, 24th Nov. 1863.—The Queen's only desire is that her Government should adopt the course best calculated to prevent war. She asks for no "favour" to Germany, but merely that justice should be done on all sides. She would gladly see the arrangement of 1852 (unjust as she must ever consider that to have been) acquiesced in by Germany and the Duchies, but doubts much whether we take the best means of effecting that object, when we throw all the blame of the present difficulties on Germany, and shut our eyes to the glaring violation of her solemn promises of which Denmark is now guilty.

It is indisputable that Austria and Prussia only became parties to the Treaty in consideration of certain engagements taken by Denmark, which she has now violated; and surely to taunt Austria with being the first to throw a stone at the edifice of European peace, is not the way to induce her to adhere to a Treaty from which the conduct of Denmark would give her a fair pretext for pleading that she was absolved!

It was the enactment of a common Constitution for Denmark and Schleswig that provoked the insurrection of 1848, which Denmark was unable to put down of herself. Should a similar proceeding, on the part of Denmark now, produce a similar result, the Queen can never consent to become a party to the imposing by force, upon the people of Holstein an arrangement which has been concluded without their concurrence.

It seems to the Queen absolutely necessary, if we expect our mediation or advice to be accepted by Germany, that it should not be offered in terms to lead to the belief that we had prejudged the question.

Must Compromise

Queen Victoria to Earl Russell.

OSBORNE, 24th Dec. 1863.—The news from Copenhagen and Germany are both very alarming.

The time seems now at hand when some compromise must be thought of, as in all probability the likeliest way to settle this terribly complicated question.

It is no longer a question of maintaining the Treaty of '52 at all hazards, it is whether War is to be averted or not, and both parties, whether they are in the right or in the wrong, ought to give way and come to a compromise.

If the Queen could feel that she had helped in staying the shedding of blood (and if once begun God knows how it will end!) she can rest not for the abuse which will be heaped upon us, by those who considered they were in the right (and that Germany has right on its side the Queen must always think), but would thank God for it.

Queen Victoria to Viscount Palmerston [Prime Minister]

OSBORNE, 8th June, 1864.

It is because she feels strongly the responsibility as Queen of these realms that she is anxious to avoid their being hurried to an unnecessary war; and no feeling for Germany could ever make her view an international question otherwise than as it might affect the interests of the people of England, although it would certainly make her deeply feel language of an unnecessary violence when towards the rulers and people of that country

Queen Victoria to the Duke of Coburg [her brother-in-law].

5th January 1864.

DEAR ERNEST—I have been greatly troubled by the premature and hasty actions of some South-German Governments, and especially of yours among them, and how much I regret that a way has been opened which threatens not only to disturb the universal peace of Europe, but also to involve Germany in revolution and civil war.

Blames Germany, Too

May God grant my earnest prayer for the maintenance of peace! The prayers of my Angel also certainly rise before God, and they are of much more value than ours.

Queen Victoria to her daughter, the Crown Princess of Prussia.

OSBORNE, 27th Jan., 1864.—With regard to this sad S. Holstein question, my heart and sympathies are all German. I condemn the Treaty of '52 completely, but once signed we cannot upset it without first trying (not by war) to maintain it. Where I do, however, blame Germany is in their wanting the two great Powers to break their engagements, and in not being contented with all the rights of the Duchies being obtained.

They have mixed up the two questions and gone so violently mad upon the subject that they lose sight of the far greater evils which may be produced by provoking war. And depend upon it, that the want of forbearance now towards the King of Denmark—now that he means to do all he can, at the risk almost of his life, to carry out what we have a very bad effect in Europe and injure the just cause of Germany.

That England is deterred I know, alas! too well; but I must bear it, as many other trials and sorrows, with patience; and continue to do all I can in prevent further irritation and in future to avoid further complications. I am glad darling Fritz is spared the worry and annoyance, for he could have done even less than I can.

Catering to the Cabbage Complex

GREETINGS Everybody!

Whether your complex is for or against cabbage it can be catered to.

If it is against, the expansion may read, and to achieve this begin cooking some and opening the front door, you have been staggered with a blast of delicious hot air peculiar to "cabbage for dinner" days. Or maybe it's your remembrance of the unattractive, overdone, soggy mass strongly flavored and waterlogged that sometimes appears as boiled dinner. You can't really be blamed for a distaste for cabbage served in this way.

But the modern mother who has learned much about cooking that valuable food does not make those mistakes. She has probably found that one of the best methods of cooking cabbage is not to cook it at all. She knows the delicious salad cabbage makes if it is served in cold water until crisp; then shredded fine with a sharp knife. It may be served with whipped cream flavored with sugar, vanilla and paprika, ordinary boiled dressing or in combination with apples, celery, sweet potatoes, chopped peanuts and other nuts that perhaps she doesn't know that that same finely shredded raw cabbage can be added about 5 minutes before serving to hot creamed soups, creamed eggs, or creamed asparagus very successfully.

It will also lengthen creamed celery or peas, being allowed to cook not more than 5 minutes before serving.

One well-known dietitian tells us that cabbage should be cut very fine so it may cook quickly. Then boiled for not over 20 minutes in salted water as possible. Don't throw this water away, it is excellent added to soup stock.

Here is a recipe for mock cream celery. This is a dainty and delicate dish and is made of finely shredded crisped cabbage which has been scalded and let stand about an hour in a little hot milk. This draws out some of the flavor and juice. Add cream and seasonings; heat it up again, thickening it up a very little if you wish.

Delicious scalloped cabbage can be made from the shredded raw cabbage instead of the boiled cabbage—the latter being the odor go up the chimney and out of the house. Arrange the shredded cabbage in layers with a bread crumb dressing with a little grated cheese or with chopped sausage or veal, a layer of sweet corn, carrot or a layer of spaghetti and cheese. Cook in a pot oven and be sure that all materials except the cabbage are hot before combining them or else it will be well and be over cooked. It doesn't need to lose all of its crispiness in order to be done.

How stews are delicious, too, and are prepared like the cold except that the dressing is heated before touring over the cabbage and then the entire dish is kept in a warm oven for a minute or two to blend the flavors. Although the cabbages become a little wilted it doesn't lose its firmness. Beaten egg, vinegar and a little sugar are generally our leading ingredients in the slaw dressing

And while this isn't a cabbage recipe I do want to make room to day to repeat a last years favorite recipe for the benefit of the unwise many times this year:

ASPARAGUS SHORTCAKE WITH CHEESE SAUCE

½ can asparagus.
2 cups flour.
½ teaspoon salt.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
4 tablespoons butter.
1 egg, beaten very light
½ cup milk.

Sift the flour and measure and sift again with the salt and baking powder. Cut the butter into the flour, then add milk and eggs beaten together and mix lightly. Turn out on a floured board and roll out to one inch thick. Bake in a moderate oven. With a floured knife cream through the center of each and and bake for 15 minutes in a hot oven. Split into halves and place the butter spread. Serve hot with cheese sauce.

Recipe on request.

A cereal youngsters eat without coaxing—get Puffed Wheat

GIVING children a cereal food is one thing; making them like it is another. Most children must be coaxed.

Puffed Wheat, probably the most unique cereal food known, overcomes that factor in a delightful way.

It tastes like toasted nutmeats and crunches in the mouth like fresh toast; children revel in it like a confection. Afood, at last, that's "good" for them, that they eat because they love it.

It is whole wheat steam exploded to eight times its natural size. Approximately 50% is bran, but to eat it you would never know it. None of the bran is purposely removed. Vital elements of wheat are retained.

Make it tomorrow's breakfast. Try, too, as a bedtime snack that will not impose on the digestion. Obtain at any grocery store.

A PIRATE of HEARTS

The Thrilling Love Story of a Boston Girl and the Husband Who Strayed

CHAPTER XLIV.

Copyright, 1926, Johnston Features, Inc.

SYLVIA was still reading Babs Delano's letter in her hand, as she went slowly down the steps of the Little White House that morning, and stood waiting for Lolly.

"Hello, Beautiful. How wonderfully well you're looking today," Lolly greeted her when she came gliding up in her new car and opened the door of it. "Hello, the bisest Baby! How's Ranny?"

Which all answered Lolly's rapid fire question. Silk stockings and lovely underwear and hat ensemble were fairly toned with soft rose color once more, and the old flirty, provocative look had come back into the blue eyes.

"But then, who wouldn't look well?" she added, herself. She had been unusually happy for a while now. At last happiness in the near future was within the world, and every morning she "Did you hear from Babs Delano?" she asked Lolly.

"Yes—never heard of her," she answered nonchalantly.

"Nothing unusual in her letter?" said Sylvia, slowly starting to frown.

"I know if she's right now, and won't mean me see much of her," Lolly said.

Sylvia recalled that Babs read in books were to be found all too make up and go away, and for the first time in two years she felt for Babs's future.

"At any rate she's found a friend of sir that Ranny would approve," Sylvia thought, and was comforted in the thought that Babs would look at her but many other men.

News for Ranny.

And anyway she went on thinking, Ranny was getting to be a regular Family Man. He rushed home at five every afternoon and he didn't play poker any more either.

It wasn't until she and Ranny were settled before the living room fire that Sylvia even thought of Babs again.

"I suppose I'll have to ask her to stay here for a day or two until she finds a place to live," she said when she had told Ranny.

He scowled. "I suppose you'll have to," he admitted grudgingly. "But I had the thought of having a strange female around in the house—"

"I'll bet she smokes cigarettes, too, and she is the kind of a girl things she doesn't understand if there's anything I can't stand in an old maid. Where are you going to put her to sleep?"

That was a problem. Sylvia didn't know just where she could put Babs and her huge wicker case did come. There was no room now that Sylvia the Second had arrived.

"I suppose you could sleep on the davenport for a night or two," Sylvia said finally, "and Babs could have your bed."

But Ranny interrupted her. "Nix on the comedy," he said, shaking his head and looking as grave as a bear. "I'd get a fine lot of sleep on that thing, wouldn't I? No. I'll go over to Mother's and you and mail friends here. Maybe she'll take the hint and beat it for first night."

And so it was settled.

But Sylvia wasn't happy at all.

It wasn't that she didn't want Babs to come there. It was the thought of Ranny going over for a few nights, she hated anyone to spoil their evenings here together.

On Monday evening, a few days later, Babs' telegram came, saying that she would arrive at five that night and asked to meet her at the station.

Sylvia groaned when Sunday was a day that she didn't want to give up to anyone.

"I must say that you old pal has nerve," Ranny added, after a pause. "Why does she have to be met at the station as if she were the Dowager Empress of Hindustan? I'd like to know? I suppose it's very I've got to go and get her, I guess it."

"Of course, you'll have to meet her, but how all you know her?" asked Sylvia. "You've never seen her and I can't go with you."

Then she found a photograph of Babs Delano.

What a Change.

Ranny groaned when he saw it. When she received a very formal engraved invitation to the wedding it was up the stairs. Babs pictured face him in

"Well, really," he said at last. "She's a peach. She ain't bad in the picture," she said. "She really, you'll be good looking if she fixed herself up a little. She has nice features and pretty hair. She's just as smart as a whip."

Ranny grinned. Sure, sure, he was going to meet a girl named with a face like that," he answered.

But at the clock he left the house on the way to get Babs Delano. He had her picture in his pocket.

"Although I don't really need it," he had said to Sylvia, when Lolly kissed her goodby, "I'll just look around for the homeliest woman in sight, and that will be Babs, I know."

At six o'clock when the train was in Lolly and Ranny was still on the platform looking for Babs, he found a girl coming toward him. Through the gathering darkness Ranny could see that there was no one but himself on it. But a second later a tarbus stepped in front of the house.

Down the doorway Sylvia saw Babs get out of it. Then Ranny jumped out of his car and hurried across the lawn toward the girl who had been his friend for so many years. She was almost handsome.

Her hair, that had been oily and dank as an Indian squaw's locks, had been bobbed and permanently waved.

She had always had good features although her complexion had been bad, but someone had shown her how to color her lips and cheeks and to shadow her eyes with brown powder so that they looked large and soft.

Her clothes were no longer as "terrible" as Sylvia had described them to Lolly. They were simple and effective. In short, Babs had transformed herself from an Ugly Duckling into a Swan, to say the least.

She gave Ranny a radiant smile from under her darkened lashes when she shook hands with him. And her eyes followed his tall figure as he strode up the stairs of the Little White House with her bags.

"My dear," she said excitedly to Sylvia, when he was out of hearing, "My dear, I've never seen anything in my life half so good looking as your husband."

For the life of her, Sylvia couldn't have told why her heart sank at the words. But it did.

It was like lead in her breast, as she led Babs Delano into her living room.

The Making of a Husband, Ann Lisle's Clever Serial

By Ann Lisle

"A NERVOUS breakdown," I repeated. "Ralph." What should he be doing with such a thing as nerves? Ralph is so capable—so well able to keep calm in emergencies and do for others. Why are you telling me he has such a weakness? Is there something the matter with him? What is really the matter?"

"Can't a man get tired?" Jim asked. Larry has worked on a dog since he was only a baby [illegible] "Sleeping in packing boxes in alleys," I said half to myself. "No one to care for him. No one to look out for him. Alone—since then and now."

"I suppose there was a break [illegible] voice. That was one of Ralph's [illegible] fights to have a home and recognized success in the [illegible] of struggle that makes everyone's blood run faster. And there was unforgettable pathos in the thought of his bitter loneliness until Wayne Parkinson Third came into his life and recognized the genius of the poor boy who was working his way through college.

Park was Ralph's first friend. Park brought Ralph into our world. And from the moment Ralph came among us, he has been ready and able to give—and give over and over again to all of us. I raised my voice and spoke openly and honestly.

"There is no one to whom I owe more than to Ralph Lacy. Old Dad [illegible] the impostor, might have foisted himself on me as a good [illegible] table parent if Ralph hadn't helped find the truth. But for Ralph I might have gone mad of fear and loneliness when you left in Nassau and worked out your business problem, Jim. It was Ralph who found Neal and kept you sane during the [illegible] months when Neal was lost—and secretly [illegible]—gathering Ralph has always stood by——"

"Because he loves you!" Jim cried furiously. "Because he covets another man's wife!"

"Jim!" I protested.

Every fibre of my being protested more angrily than I had words to express. No one had ever put Ralph's devotion to me into such crude words. For Jim to let his jealous mood at this moment was more than I felt called on to endure. But I couldn't argue before Jim and Jeanie. I turned and started to go from the room.

"Wait, Anne!" cried Jeanie. "Things like this faster if you don't have them out when they come to a head. Ralph does love you. We all know that. Jim isn't insinuating that Ralph's love has ever been anything but brave and fine and honest."

"Ralph is my friend," I said. "Jim is my love, and my dearest pal."

Jim came across the room, leaning heavily as he does when he is [illegible] adding a friend in need—a friend who has so often stood by me!"

"Do what you think is right," Jim said. "If you want to have Ralph down here with us—if you want to look out for him, go to it. I know you, I trust you. Yes—and by all [illegible] I trust Larry."

[illegible] in new heart-ease to [illegible] that you [illegible] I know [illegible] are [illegible]

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

RUSSIA is becoming the matrimonial centre of the world. Under a new law, it only takes five minutes to get married in Moscow. Russia can get married if he has five minutes to spare.

THE officials are trying to encourage romance. They don't want to put four wheel brakes on love.

ONE bride and groom went through the ceremony so fast they thought they were on their way to a fire.

THIS is a wonderful idea. Couples can get married during their lunch hour.

AND the wife doesn't have to lose any of her salary.

YOU can propose to your girl at noon and have her back at the factory by twelve forty-five.

SHE can use the one o'clock whistles for her wedding bells.

IT took one fellow seven minutes to get married, but he wanted a little time taking his hat off.

THE minister charged him sixty-five cents extra because he stuttered.

IT'S a good thing he didn't have to draw or he'd have run up a big bill.

THE wedding ceremony in Russia is so fast that marriage has almost become a pleasure.

THERE'S no excuse for being a old bachelor. The busiest man in Russia can get married if he has five minutes to spare.

EVERYTHING in Moscow is so rapid, that instead of gold, they make the wedding rings out of quicksilver.

THE ceremonies are so fast that you'd think you were being married by a speed cop.

SOMETIMES they're in too much of a hurry. One minister got so excited that he married one guy to three women.

DAILY SHORT STORY

FIRE

By Maria C. Lutrrell

"CAN a man take fire in his bosom, and his clothes not be burned?"

How true it was Mide I Davis had read at confession in the Hilton Spring high school. Various passages of the pastor discourse on hell, upon which she was thirty days before, still lured the fascinated gaze hard upon her own young countenance. Her husband, Jim Davis, simply could not resist flirting a little with pretty women. Even Jim's enemies admitted that there was nothing serious about his philandering. It was a sort of harmless pastime with him.

At first Mildred had joked about it, had laughingly speculated just how violent the attack would prove to be when a particularly attractive girl came to visit in the town. But as time went on and Mary, Jane and Sue succeeded Sabrinina, Alice and Virginia, it began to wear a little on Mildred's nerves. She wondered whether she possessed pitied her. Just how much was being said behind her back! In other words, her sense of humor was giving out. She had accepted Jim at face value. Later she found herself mentally demanding more than he really had to give. Mildred knew that he would return to her for the physical. he was true to her but she began to hate his periodic bursts of violent love-making that invariably followed one of his so-called indiscretions.

She was restless, unhappy, groping for some means of retaliation when Bob Marshall appeared upon the scene. She was at the Country Club one lay having luncheon with a group of women when the stunning stranger made a very fine cake like entrance. Foxy barfield had him in tow, and Mildred felt the brown warm eyes fastened admiringly upon her. Nasty Foxy brought him over to the table where Mildred sat with friends.

I think it a perfectly disgusting for a single creature to bring a good looking man to the club and then find him all eyes for a married woman," bemoaned Polly when she had presented him to Mildred. "I told him that all those soulful glances he gave you would do him no good—that old Jim did all the flirting in your family."

That was the flame to light the fuel of Mildred a rising resentment against her husband. She was looking especially well that day and knew it. She never dressed fussily. There was a sleek, well groomed air about her always. On that fateful day, she was wearing a two-piece sport suit in a lovely shade of blue with a little felt hat in the same heavenly shade pulled down over her eyes that were like sapphires with a glow in them.

Now Bob Marshall was dark, black hair, tanned skin, brown eyes. The Saxon blondness of Mildred caught his fancy. That she was married intrigued him a bit, too. That her husband was a recognized flirt furnished the idea of pity that poets have long declared akin to the grand passion. At any rate, things moved along alarmingly for Mildred. She finally left the club hanging to her morning boom the startling fact that she had a secret engagement—the first since she had married Jim. Bob Marshall was going to call that night—the night that Jim's poker club met for dinner and an evening's entertainment.

In less than a week, the thing that Mildred had considered impossible had happened. She was in love with Bob Marshall. The thought of him was like a warm, comforting hand to her heart. The sound of his voice brought back the thrills of her girlhood. What she would wear and how she would look at each social function became a matter of the utmost importance. she jumped when the telephone rang—hoping that it would be a call from Bob Marshall.

The town sat up and took notice. Commented freely on whether or not sauce for the goose could be sauce for the gander. Night after night—even on poker club night—Jim dutifully came home to dinner only to find that Mildred had gone out, and was not expected home until late. There was always hot house flowers, new books and candy about the house. One night Jim spoke of her generous friend

Mildred smiled and helped herself to another piece of candy

"Now, who's been here since I've been gone?" he asked jocularly enough to disarm suspicion.

"You're in luck, Jim," she told him carelessly. "I'm not jealous of the candy and flowers you give away, now that I have them myself."

The smile promptly died out of his eyes. He instantly became on guard. "What do you mean by that?" he demanded, a new red creeping into his face.

"Merely that life is far more stimulating, intriguing, if you please, now that I have some one to admire me, some one who cares what I think, what I do, what I wear, where I go? She was a little excited. Her voice rose "How stupid of me to wait all these lonely years before I found out that I could cry 'check' every time you developed a new affair. I don't worry about it any more. I don't care," she said deliberately.

Jim Davis was not theatrical. His emotions had never before been deeply stirred. He loved Mildred as few wives are ever loved. He had never been more serious about his fruitions than he was over a chocolate eclair or an ice cream soda. His whole had merely been a something sweet to satisfy him for a few minutes at a time. He crossed the room and looked down at Mildred where she sat in a few chair.

He dropped down beside her, flung an arm across her knees. "You're teasing, aren't you, honey? You know I love you. That you're the only woman in the world for me. You love me, don't you, Milly?"

Her answer came quickly. Every word was like a knife wound in his breast. "Not any more. I've missed living for years, foolishly holding on to the delusion that I did love you."

Jim regarded her gravely. She was pushing her body back, hard, as not the back of the chair, as if she wanted to get away from his touch "You don't mean that, Milly. Say you don't?"

"But I do mean it. I'm frightfully bored with you, tired of forgiving, trying to forget. Tired to death of your flirtations. Now I've found something to take the place of your supposed love for me. And it's fine, high, noble, something you wouldn't understand because such an emotion is beyond you."

"You refer to Bob Marshall's love for you?"

Mildred rose and faced him. "Yes I'm glad that you mentioned it. I'll give you grounds for divorce if you want me to—anything—anything—to be free."

"Free?" Jim was like a dazed man. Things had moved too swiftly for him to follow. "Free! I don't want to be free. I want you."

"What about me? I want freedom from you."

"You're out of your head, Milly! Why, we've never even quarreled until now. It's all right for you to play around with Bob Marshall, although I'm honest enough to say that I don't like it. The shoe is on the other foot now and pinches. And I apologize for any worry I've ever caused you—but you've always known I wasn't serious. Just fooling along! You know me"

"Too well," admitted Mildred briefly. She turned to the door. "I'm going to Bob's apartment now to tell him the glad news that I've made the break for—freedom."

Jim Davis sat down heavily in the chair she had just vacated. He felt as if he were experiencing a horrible nightmare.

Just Sanford came rushing in from the hall. She met Mildred in the doorway, "I'm bursting with news," she cried, grasping Mildred's hand and pulling her back into the room where Jim sat. "Bob Marshall has eloped with Frances Greve. He's been going to see her for months, you know, that cute little blonde who sold flowers in Flowercraft Shop. He's simply mad about her. Has hung diamonds on her at her every chance. I hear. Imagine! And we thought he had fallen for you! Jim's a Blinkin's a darling of you to help him out. You see it kept at the single ones like myself off the trail. Such twentieth century deceit! Of course he told you all about it?" she said gaily, turning to look quizzically at Mildred who was trying hard to smile

"Oh, yes, of course" gasped Mildred bravely. "Everything."

"Mildred and I were just laughing over the news when you came in Jim Davis showed himself a sport. He put his arm around Mildred again and this time she did not push him away. She caught his arm and gave it a grateful little squeeze

"Can a man take fire in his bosom, and his clothes not be burned?" Once more the question seemed her.

THE FOXY GRANDPA INTERESTING DAILY BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

BOBBY, Bunny and I had spent the day aboard a British man-of-war, for we were visiting in England at the time. And as we left the gangway and stepped into the launch which was to take us ashore Bobby said:

"Foxy Grandpa, you ought to see the torpedo."

Bunny, who jumped up on the seat in the stern of the boat, declared proudly:

"I'm in hopes of showing you another kind of torpedo one of these days over here."

"Where?" asked Bobby, promptly.

"By the ocean, naturally," Bunny replied sharply.

Several days after that we went down to the seashore and spent a very happy week swimming and fishing and exploring the beaches and coves along the coast.

One day I was lying on the sand and Bobby was busy building a castle in the sand when Bunny, who had been frisking around the beach, returned suddenly and before he reached us shouted:

"Come on, Bobby, come on Foxy Grandpa, I'll show you the torpedo I was talking about."

Now Bobby looked at me as if he thought Bunny had lost his mind, and then he looked out to sea, turned to me and said:

"I don't see a ship in sight and there certainly isn't any arsenal on this beach." He hesitated a moment and said:

"I have it. I'll bet the British fleet has been having manoeuvres around here and they've lost a torpedo and it's washed up on shore."

Bunny must have overheard Bobby, because he shouted back over his shoulder:

"It's washed upon shore all right. That's where we're lucky, but this torpedo was never on a British ship, I'll wager my left hind foot."

Bunny bounded on ahead and we followed him.

Then he stopped and we could see he was standing looking at something lying on the beach. We hurried and caught up to him and there it was. It was big and flat and it must have measured about six feet from its flat snub to the tip of its tail, and without a doubt its body was five feet wide.

"Skate," I declared.

"Belongs to the Ray or Skate family," declared Bunny in his most professor-like tone, "but this particular fellow is a torpedo."

"Torpedo!" exclaimed Bobby.

"Electric torpedo," explained Bunny.

"Yes, sir," announced Bunny; and I could see that he was ready to give one of his lectures. He struck a very dignified pose and continued:

"This torpedo is an electric fish. In fact, it has a kind of electric battery inside of it. They say the battery is something like the honeycomb with a number of six-sided columns which run from under the skin of the back to the skin of the lower part of the body, and that each of these columns is divided into a number of cells. These cells each contains a liquid, and it is in this liquid that the electricity is stored."

"Could it shock anybody?" asked Bobby.

"Been known to ring an electric bell," answered the four-footed professor, "and it could easily kill a duck. Just to make sure of not getting a shock myself, I think I'll duck right now." And off he frisked up the beach.

Wrinkles Removed in 15 Minutes--3 Cents!

Quite a sensation has been created in certain social circles over the wonderful rejuvenating effects of a simple Tarkroot mixture any woman can easily apply. The results are so remarkable that one has told others, who have told many more; now the new method bids fair to supersede all patent wrinkle removers, massage and other things for the purpose.

This is the procedure: A spoonful of Powdered Tarkroot is mixed with a spoonful of lemon juice, and this is spread over the face. An amazing transformation takes place, as the mirror shows. In less than 15 minutes wrinkles, crowsfeet and creases have completely vanished. Facial contour is noticeably improved and the face looks years younger. The most skillful massage could not produce such a wholesome effect as remains after the mixture has been washed off. Tarkroot is of course perfectly harmless. Inexpensive, too. An original package from the druggist contains sufficient to bring the most per treatment under three cents.

FOR Acid Stomach

PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

BETTER THAN SODA

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid as the strongest as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this sour-ing waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

TRY A 25c BOTTLE

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drug store.

EXTENSION OF 'L' CONTROL FOR YEAR

By FRANK H. MELONS, Financial Editor.

On April 8 in this column we stated: "While legislators, friends of the people and others wrangle over what shall be done about the Boston Elevated. It becomes increasingly likely that public control will be extended automatically [1 y] because of failure of the Legislature to take action. Those who affect to envy "L" stockholders on the ground that the latter will get $112 a share for their common stocks under public ownership have an excellent chance to place themselves in the so-called enviable position by purchasing the stock in the open Boston market, where it sells steadily at $79 a share, around $5 low for the year."

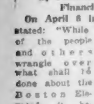
Of General Manager Dana's well-known system the Boston News Bureau today says:



H. L. Shattuck

"It may not be generally appreciated that the failure of the present Legislature to take any action in regard to Boston Elevated automatically insures the continuance of public control until 1929. While the Legislature has not yet adjourned, as a practical matter no legislation in the Boston Elevated matter is now possible at this session. To resubmit a Boston Elevated bill—which would come in as new matter—would require a four-fifths vote of the rules committee, and on Beacon Hill it is stated that such a majority could not be obtained.

"Although the essentials of the Elevated public control act are by this time well known to the reading public, there is still some confusion regarding the duration of public control. The public control bill, passed in 1918, fixed the minimum period of State operation as ten years, with a five years' notice required from the Legislature in order to terminate the contract. In other words, the Legislature would have to pass such a vote in 1926 in order to terminate in 1928. With nothing done at the present session, it follows that 1927 will now be the Legislature's first opportunity—should it desire to do so—to vote in favor of returning the property to the stockholders in 1929.

"While the failure of this year's Legislature to act in the Elevated case leaves the future of the road in as uncertain a state as ever, stockholders are deriving some satisfaction from remarks of Chairman Henry L. Shattuck of the House ways and means committee. Mr. Shattuck said that the need of additional capital by the road is not so pressing as had been supposed and that there has been substantial improvement in the financial condition of the company."

$3,000,000 OF HEARST PAPER BONDS SOLD

New York, April 22.—The Chicago Evening American, the most popular afternoon paper in the Chicago district, has sold $3,000,000 five-year 6 per cent. notes to Halsey Stuart & Company and Whiting & Company, according to announcement.

The Chicago Evening American is the William Randolph Hearst afternoon paper in Chicago. The bankers in announcing the purchase of the bonds, stated:

"The Evening American has had an excellent record. It now has the largest circulation of any afternoon paper in the city of Chicago. Its average circulation being in excess of 535,000 copies a day."

Sale of the notes marks the entrance of the second Chicago newspaper into the investment field as the Daily News marketed $8,000,000 securities last December. Public offering of the Evening American notes by a banking syndicate headed by Halsey Stuart & Co., and Whiting & Company is expected within the next few days.

Hotels, Resorts and Travel

NEWFOUNDLAND IDEAL FOR VACATION

The opportunities for recreation in Newfoundland are varied to suit every taste. Here one can angle the rocky heights, wander on plains bright with wildflowers or rich in late Summer with huckleberries; here one can stalk the caribou and bend the oar in the canoe races of the countless lakes and streams gay with purple irises, fragrant water lilies. The adventurous can attack the lordly moose, or flush the ptarmigan (state bird) from the ground upon their native heath, or explore the forest-stretch inland amid the wilder grandeur scenery. Whether it be on foot or by motor boat these tourist can in an hour from the up-to-date hotel steamer or train into the bright playgrounds of nature and enjoy for the time its and purer life.

Here the traveler will find well-arranged new hotels in the hardy fisher-folk—who still preserve their primitive naivete and roundings the old-world customs their West-country ancestors—the rich old-time speech of Devon and Dorset. Kind, friendly interest in their struggles with fog and ocean, and unspoiled in their appreciation of the ways of these cities, they never fail to show interest and esteem of visitors.

GLACIER PARK OPENS JUNE 15

Glacier National Park comprises an area of over 1,500 square miles and opens June 15. The main range of the Rocky Mountains extends north to south through the park, and here are over sixty active glaciers in the park, of which the Blackfeet, Red Eagle and Sperry glaciers are easily accessible. The park contains over 250 mountain lakes, which are fed by the glaciers. One of these is one of the largest, being over ten miles long. Trout abound in many of the lakes and streams and afford splendid fly fishing.

Glacier is located in the northwestern Montana on the main transcontinental line of the Great Northern Railway.

Through sleeping car service is available from Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and the Pacific points via Burlington and Northern Railway. Some of the Park's many attractions include horseback riding, automobiling, hiking, camping, mountain climbing, fishing and just loafing in the bracing air of the mile-high Rockies.

Summer Training

For the Common Defense

Here is a sample day's schedule in the Citizens' Military Training Camps, one of which will be held at Camp Devens during the month of August.

After reveille and breakfast comes, at 7:30 a. m., 45 minutes of infantry drill. From 8:25 to 9:10, a talk on citizenship; 9:20 to 9:40, physical instruction and calisthenics; 9:45 to 10:35, instruction in personal and camp hygiene; 10:45 to 11:30, tactics, which completes the forenoon's work.

Luncheon and rest occupy an hour and a half, when, from 1:30 to 4 p. m., comes target practice.

On alternate days the instruction and drilling are confined within the forenoon with the exception of a regimental parade, which follows three and one-half afternoon hours of recreation and athletics.

Evenings are always free and are provided with wholesome social opportunities, such as properly chaperoned parties, dances and the like.

A more accurate title than Citizens' Military Training Camps would be Volunteer Training Camps for the Common Defense.

To train with the Colors for this purpose is to train for complete citizenship under the Stars and Stripes.

Every young man between the ages of 17 and 24, to whom the American Government gives this month of advantageous adventure, will, if he uses well his opportunity, return to his home in every way a healthier, happier and better balanced individual, a wiser, more intelligent, self-reliant candidate for the responsibilities of American citizenship.

This is the sort of camp to which John Coolidge has gone for two years with the whole-hearted encouragement and endorsement of his distinguished parents, the President and Mrs. Coolidge.

Evidently they do not agree with Dr. Cadman regarding what is best for their son.

But the enrollments for these 52 citizens' training camps will close soon.

Citizens of the six New England States should write at once to the C. M. T. C. officer, First Corps Area Headquarters, Army Base, Boston, Mass.

Why Not Branch Banks?

As Logical as Branch Postoffices

If Congress were to prohibit the establishment of branch postoffices in large cities and compel every citizen to go to a single office, imagine the confusion, crowding, waste of time that would result.

More people visit the nation's banks every day than visit general postoffices. Yet Congress has been seriously considering legislation to put a ban upon the development of branch banks.

Opponents of branch banking fear that were the Money Power permitted to develop a network of branch banks throughout the country, it would attain something approaching monopolistic dominion over money and credit.

While such a fear is understandable, it should not be allowed to kill what, in the very nature of things, is an inevitable, as well as a desirable, accompaniment of this country's march toward greater progress.

It might be wise at first to restrict the establishment of branch banks to the State of the main bank. But to forbid a city bank to establish branches within the boundaries of its own city would be as illogical as to decree that all sub-postoffices should be closed.

It would be still more foolish for Congress to pass any law to handicap members of the Federal Reserve System in competing with banks and trust companies outside the Federal system, for the very backbone of our banking structure admittedly is our Federal Reserve System. Yet Congress has been considering action which would have exactly that result.

Our bankers are wholly in harmony with the modern trend when they demand liberty to open branch banks within their own city and their own State, under the same strict regulation now maintained by the authorities.

Why has the little island of Britain banks twice as large as America's largest? Why has Britain been able to build up the most powerful and effective banking machinery in the world? Because Britain long has enjoyed the advantages of branch banking. A bank failure is almost an unheard-of thing in England and Scotland. Here we have scores—hundreds—of bank failures every time the country experiences a setback.

Congress should overcome its prejudice in these matters, not for the sake of Wall Street bankers or any other bankers, but for the sake of the better development of this nation's industry, agriculture and other resources, upon which the nation's prosperity depends.

IF YOU WAIT OPPORTUNITY BE READY FOR IT

Some day you expect to make a mark in the world.

For years you have had this thought.

You have made no definite plans to carry out this idea; but you move along easier in your mind because you are certain that the right course will suggest itself to you "some time."

Year after year you put off getting down to realities. You have not analyzed your qualifications to see if you are really equipped to carry on when your opportunity comes.

In fact, you are losing some of your enthusiasm—perhaps your youth and vigor, your self-confidence.

That distinction that you have always half imagined would be handed out to you has not come.

Do you not realize that if you put off aggressive efforts very much longer you will have passed the time when it will be possible for you to win success?

If you have vigorously and diligently studied and worked for the much desired goal all these years that is another thing; but if you have merely drifted depending on a short-time intensive study to put you over you are lost.

Too Good to Be Missed!

THE quota for the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Camp Devens this year will soon be filled. Every mail brings showers of applications. Young Americans who want a month of clean fun free and parents who know what is best for their sons are losing no time in embracing so generous an opportunity.

Those interested are advised to move quickly. It would be a pity to have the application delayed until there was no more room.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

ARE wives
Parasites—
Liars—
Cheats—
Intriguers—
Money grabbers—
Contributors to immorality?

They are—all too often—says Judge Selah B. Strong in the April issue of the Cosmopolitan. And he forthwith proceeds to prove his point by argument taken from divorce cases over which he has presided. Judge Strong recently startled the country by refusing to grant alimony to able-bodied childless women. He enters the ring once more to describe the trifle of lady weasles which the alimony business has produced. As at least 9,547 enthusiastic male editors and an equal number of indignant female ones have taken a swing at this article, it would be presumptuous for me to attempt further analysis of its sterling worth. But there's one point on which Judge Strong didn't touch which will bear some illumination.

Judge Strong confines his article to the mean practices of childless wives to whom he refuses alimony.

How about the mean practices of divorced mothers to whom he grants alimony?

The childless parasite is a vicious menace to the community. But she has nothing on the divorced mama who lives on her husband's money and brings up her children to spy on and hate the man who feeds them.

In the majority of our States the wife is awarded the custody of the children in case of divorce. This is done because of the beautiful tradition that the little darlings need the blessed influence of a mother's love on their budding characters.

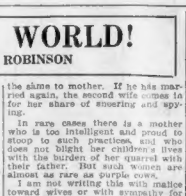
The sentiment does us proud.

But how does it work out in practice?

Usually the children grow up in an atmosphere of hate and revenge. The "home" which the mother gives them is constantly tinctured with the bitter grudge which she bears against the father. They constantly hear that father discussed with anger and ridicule. They are taught to think of him with contempt. If the court decrees that they are to spend the Sundays with him, or six months of the year, they are taught to spy upon all he does and report the same to mother. If he has married again, the second wife comes in for her share of sneering and spying.

In rare cases there is a mother who is too intelligent and proud to stoop to such practices, and who does not blight her children's lives with the burden of her quarrel with their father. But such women are almost as rare as purple cows.

I am not writing this with malice toward wives or with sympathy for husbands. I am writing it in defence of the child life which is poisoned by such atmosphere of hate.



DADDY WAS TERRIBLE HE STAYED OUT UNTILL EIGHT O'CLOCK
YOU ARE A GOOD LITTLE GIRL - I WILL GIVE YOU A DOLLAR WHEN HE SENDS ME PAY ALIMONY MONEY

If it's contemptible for a childless woman to prey on her ex-husband, it is a hundred times more contemptible for a mother to prey on her children's lives that her jealousy and anger may be gratified. If she is unable to control her vindictiveness, she should in decency refuse to take money from the man she despised. She will then, at least, save herself and her children from the defilement of hypocrisy.

Were I a judge, I would make certain conditions before I granted alimony to even the most "deserving" mother.

I would make the continuance of such alimony contingent upon her behavior. If at any time it was proven that she was bringing the children up to despise their father, the alimony would be withdrawn. Regardless of her own feelings toward him, she should him honor in her children's eyes—or else get out and hustle for her own support.

MOST MEN WANT TO BE HONEST

By DR. FRANK CRANE

TRUTH is found in the average.

The shortest road to error is to judge by exceptions.

Judge all women by the Cleopatras and the Faustinas and you are far from knowing what women are really like.

Judge the honesty of all men by the unscrupulous exceptions and you arrive at an unjustified conclusion that men are upright only so long as there is no opportunity to be otherwise.

The nearer you have access to reliable, long-time, big area statistics, the nearer you come to believing that the average man is inherently honest.

Insuring jewelry is largely a gamble on the honesty of the person taking out the policy.

Companies issuing such policies carefully investigate each applicant, but they say it is not upon this basis but upon the inherent honesty of the average man that they can be sure of their profits.

In an interview recently the head of a national insurance company writing such policies said:

"We write millions of dollars' worth of jewelry insurance every year and our confidence in the honesty of the people increases with each year."

I remember talking to the circulation manager of a large Western daily who had tried the experiment of putting papers on street corners, letting the customer take his paper and leave the money lying on the papers.

This gave a test of both the honesty of those taking the papers and of those who passed and saw the coins lying unguarded.

"During the several years we have been trying the experiment," he said, "we have found that every day we lose a few papers, but the plan pays because we have found that we can count on the honesty of the average man."

The postmaster back in Springfield, Illinois, used to say:

"I have found that most men don't feel right if they keep overchange. The average man will return two cents if he gets that much more than is coming to him."

Individuals may be dishonest, but in the long run it is always safe to bank on the honesty of men.

While the Brain Is Yourg

Men, Like Trees, Die "at the Top"

GEORGE F. BAKER, REAL FINANCIAL KING, AND POWERFUL RULER AT EIGHTY-SIX YEARS OF AGE, IS SEEN PLAYING GOLF WITH HIS FRIEND, E. E. LOOMIS, PRESIDENT OF THE LEHIGH VALLEY RAILROAD.

This reminds you that old age means little if it applies only to THE BODY. While the brain is young, the whole man—OR WOMAN—is young. The man on the right in this picture is George F. Baker, Chairman of the Board of the First National Bank of New York, owner of hundreds of millions, and giver of many millions to education and in other useful directions.

Some of the Wall Street sharks believe that Mr. Baker is the richest man in the world, although he probably ISN'T. In real wealth John D. Rockefeller is probably the richest man, because of untold billions that his companies possess in oil below the ground. In actual annual cash receipts, Henry Ford is probably the richest man on earth. His income would pay big dividends on at least two thousand million dollars.

And if he wanted to run his business merely for money, which he doesn't, or if he wanted to add to the price of his machines instead of cutting the prices, he probably could make two or three times what he is making now.

The FOUR richest men on earth undoubtedly are Rockefeller, Mellon, Ford and George F. Baker, whom you see here. And they all have plenty. You need not worry about them.

Life is more important than money. And the SPIRIT, eternal salvation infinitely more important than either. "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" That old warning still impresses men of power.

And, VERY INTELLIGENTLY, when they have gained their hundreds of millions, they seek to merit future reward by giving their money to help others, for education, science, health, instead of following the old fashion of giving the money to be spent for the benefit of their own individual souls, as though they could bribe Divine Providence with cash.

Men are interested in this picture of Mr. Baker because it shows that old age is UNREAL while the mind remains young.

Mr. Baker takes care of his body. Therefore, his body takes care of him; and his mind, back of that serious face, works as clearly as it ever did.

When the small-sized panic hit Wall Street recently and threatened to get worse, Mr. Baker interrupted his golf in the South, came to New York and let it be known that he was there. And the panic died away. "THEY knew that Baker wouldn't be coming back in a slump unless he meant to STOP it."

This man of eighty-six exercises great power in every direction.

He is THE POWER, for instance, in many railroads, including the New York Central. There are many young Vanderbilts in existence, direct descendants of the original old Cornelius, Staten Island boatman. But they don't know who is going to be President of the New York Central until Mr. Baker tells them. THEN they know.

If you take care of your body, keep your mind active, keep out of mental rut, avoid dissipation, you will find that the best part of life begins at sixty years of age and runs on indefinitely—easily past ninety.

One of these days men will be in their prime at 125. There isn't any doubt about THAT. Meanwhile, YOU start in now with the determination to be your best at eighty-six, like Mr. Baker.

The famous Luigi Cornaro, a Venetian nobleman, did it. Given up to die at a little past forty, he said: "This interests me," changed his way of living, and lived to be over 100.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Positiveness is a good quality for teachers and preachers.

* * *

It is dangerous to believe and to disbelieve; therefore it is far better that the truth should be thoroughly searched than that a foolish opinion should pervert your judgment.

* * *

One devious step at first stepping out frequently leads a person into a wilderness of doubt and error.

* * *

It is a good thing to laugh at any rate; and if a straw can tickle a man it is an instrument of happiness.

* * *

I should wish neither, but had I of necessity to choose, I would rather suffer unjustly than act unjustly.

* * *

As one lamp lights another, nor grows less,
So nobleness enkindleth nobleness.

New opinions are always suspected, and usually opposed, without any other reason but because they are not already common.

* * *

Men are born with two eyes but with one tongue in order that they should see twice as much as they say.

* * *

I am very thankful for old age, which has increased my eager desire for information.

* * *

Men are never so good or so bad as their opinions.

* * *

We must beat theiron while it is hot, but we may polish it at leisure.

Footpaths of vice soon become wide highways.
